Prepare To Greet Pope

NEW YORK AP -- New York, which regularly showers plaudits and ticker tape on the great and famous of the world, made ready today to welcome Pope Paul VI's mission of peace.

Even by New York standards, the preparations were on a grand scale -- to match the historic importance of Monday's visit, the first to the New World by a reigning Roman Catholic pontiff.

Fifteen touches were put on the Pope's crowded 14-hour schedule that includes a meeting with President Johnson, a plea for world peace before the United Nations General Assembly and a public Mass in Yankee Stadium.

In addition, the Pope will pray at St. Patrick's Cathedral, meet with Protestant and Jewish leaders and stop at the Vatican Pavilion of the New York World's Fair.

After he arrives at Kennedy Airport Monday morning, the Pope will enter a specially constructed limousine for a 24-mile motorcade to St. Patrick's. Millions are expected to crowd the route, including more than 900,000 children of the city's parochial schools who get the day off. Special areas are reserved for them.

All of New York's 26,000 policemen will be on duty Monday, most of them assigned to the papal visit. Commissioner Vincent L. Broderick has estimated the city will pay $1 million in police overtime.

In the limousine, the Pope's seat will raise him seven inches above the other passengers. The rear of the car is roofless but a transparent top is available in case of bad weather.

The Weather Bureau's extended forecast indicated a sunny and mild day.

At noon the Pope arrives at St. Patrick's where he will stop to pray and give his blessing to those inside.

After his stop at St. Patrick's, the pontiff will re-enter his limousine for the short drive to meet President Johnson in Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg's residence on the top floor of the Waldorf Towers.

Besides his address to the General Assembly, the Pope scheduled separate private meetings at the United Nations with Secretary-General U Thant and Amintore Fanfani of Italy, president of the General Assembly.

At the Yankee Stadium Mass in the evening, the Pope will deliver a short sermon in English.

Afterwards he will head to the Vatican Pavilion, his final stop before leaving from Kennedy Airport.

High Hopes For Pope Visit

VATICAN CITY (AP) -- Ecumenical council bishops looked today for Pope Paul's U.N. trip to bring Roman Catholics closer to the problems of the peace-hungry modern world.

The 2,200 prelates at the council went into their weekend recess as the Pope's Monday morning departure for the United Nations headquarters in New York drew closer.

Despite the recess, there was no lull in the hectic pace that has marked this fourth and final council session since it began Sept. 14.

Federal Pay Hike Proves To Be Penalty

SPECIAL TO DAILY STANDARD. WASHINGTON -- Rep. Paul Jones, Kennet Democrat, says that the citizen better look out if Uncle Sam starts giving him something.

Generous Uncle Sam gave every one receiving social security payments a seven percent boost in the amount recently approved by congress and the president.

A 10th district Missouri woman, a veteran's wife, got her $4.50 increase and then discovered it would cause her to lose $190 a year in income. She found out she could not even refuse to take the increase in payments.

This reminds Congressman Jones that "Hell is paved with good intentions." He said he and the others approved the increase with the best of intentions. But this much extra put the woman over the amount of income she could legally get and gave her less income than she had before.

Congressman Jones has introduced a resolution which provides that a person may refuse to accept an increase in payments under such circumstances. If he does refuse to accept it the increase cannot be counted as income for the person.

He says that some of the wise sayings of the past do not fit into today's conditions. He said there is an adage "one should not look a gift horse in the mouth." He says that it would be a good idea to do it -- maybe the nag is not worth what she appears to be worth at first sight.

Oust Bircher As GOP Editor

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The editor of a newsletter published by Washington Young Republicans has been ousted because he is a member of the John Birch Society.

The unpaid editor and his boss confirmed the move today. It came amid a barrage of GOP criticism aimed at the society. The attack on Birchers began Wednesday when Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., charged the society is trying to infiltrate the GOP and said its influence should be driven from the party.

Fran Westover of Greenbelt, Md., secretary of the District of Columbia Young Republicans, said she gave George H. Miller Jr., a letter Thursday night, telling him he was through as editor of the newsletter.

BUFFALO, N. Y. AP -- William B. Dickinson of the Philadelphia Bulletin has been elected president of the Associated Press Managing Editors.

To Clear Land For Center

Clearing of land for the Kingsway Plaza Shopping Center, South Kingshighway, will begin in 10 days, according to George Staples, Jr., Charleston, secretary and leasing agent for Kingsway Plaza Corporation.

He said that a contract for clearing 31.5 acres has been awarded to L. H. Stagnes of Poplar Bluff.

There will be two stages of construction. The first will begin March 1, and will be completed by Sept. 1.

The second phase is scheduled to begin in 1966 and be finished March 1, 1967 with a 30-store center employing 450 when in operation.

The center will have a 2,564 car parking area. In addition to the stores, there will be 19,520 square feet of second floor office space.

Principal owners of the center are Harry Lowman, president, of Ashland, Ky., and Staples. The general warranty deed for the land was delivered to the recorder's office in New Madrid Thursday.

"Due to increase in the size of some of the tenants and interest of new tenants the center had to be completely redesigned," Staples said.

"For instance, our major department store, which has not been announced, but will be soon, increased its size by 13,000 feet. Our supermarket, Safeway, increased its size by 4,000 feet and our variety store, T. G. and Y., increased its size by 3,000 feet.

The land was purchased Thursday from Mary and Arnold Roth.

Architects are A. F. and Arthur Stauders of St. Louis. Staples has been leasing agent for centers in Poplar Bluff and Cape Girardeau, which are in operation.

He is now developing centers in Paducah, Ky., and Ashland, Ky.

Five Injured In Two-Car Collision North Of Malden

Five persons were injured in a two-car crash at 10:30 p.m. yesterday, one mile north of Malden.

A 1962 Rambler, driven north by Carolyn Laxton, 23, Malden, attempted a left turn. She was in the path of a northbound 1956 Ford, driven by Doyle Albright, 19, of Bernie.

Injured in the Laxton car were the driver, with cuts on the chin and left knee; Harold Stafford, 31, Malden, cuts on head; Earl Rose, 33, Malden, face cuts, and Betty Hoggard, 25, Malden, leg cuts. The four were treated at the Malden clinic.

Albright suffered a concussion and was taken to the Dunklin County hospital in Kennett. The Malden woman was given a summons for careless and reckless driving, the state patrol reported.

Six others were hurt in other Boothell traffic accidents. Near the Trail of Tears Park in Cape Girardeau county, a car struck an embankment injuring two.

Two college students were sent to a Cape Girardeau hospital at 10:25 p.m. Friday after (Continued on page 8)

Rules Soldier Entitled To Legal Counsel

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) -- A U.S. District Court judge has ruled that a soldier is entitled to the same legal protection at a court-martial as a civilian tried in any court.

The ruling, on a soldier's application for a writ of habeas corpus, challenges traditional concepts of military justice and is called unique by Utah's U.S. attorney William T. Thurman.

Judge A. Sherman Christensen of the Utah District, in an opinion filed Friday, said soldiers tried by special court-martial are entitled by the Constitution's Sixth Amendment to a trained lawyer as counsel.

Officers traditionally are appointed to act as defense or prosecution counsel in a court-martial, regardless of whether they are lawyers.

The uniform code of military justice requires bona fide lawyers as defense and prosecution counsel in a general court-martial, but a lower court-martial does not carry this requirement.

Pvt. James E. Stapley of Salt Lake City pleaded guilty two months ago at a special court-martial to passing eight bad checks and using disrespectful language to a noncommissioned officer. The court-martial was held here at Ft. Douglas.

Stapley said his military counsel had recommended the guilty plea. He was sentenced to 60 days imprisonment. A fine of $55 a month for six months was commuted providing he pays back $130 in bad checks.

Two weeks ago Stapley got a civilian attorney, James P. Cowley of Salt Lake City. Cowley applied for a writ of habeas corpus, a legal tool used to free persons unlawfully held in custody. Stapley was freed after 58 days of confinement.

Judge Christensen's opinion said, "the right to counsel (meaning a lawyer) of one charged with a crime before a military tribunal is as fundamental to a fair trial as before a civilian court."

U.S. Prisoners To Work Days Outside Walls In New Program

WASHINGTON (AP) -- For hundreds of federal prisoners who yearn for something better, prison walls are about to become "something you return to at night" when other men are returning to their homes. They will be given a chance to prepare a place for themselves in the nation's labor force in hopes of easing transition to freedom when their sentences are up -- a shock that often leads them back to prison. They will be turned loose from 10 federal institutions each morning, to travel to jobs, work beside free men and return voluntarily to their cells in the evening. For every step of the way they will be on their own - unescorted, unwatched. The "work relief program" for which the Federal Bureau of Prisons is now setting machinery into motion, is a provision of the prisoner rehabilitation law signed by President Johnson Sept. 10.

It marks another step in the long campaign to transform U. S. penal institutions from dark holes of confinement and despair to colonies where men who have strayed from the path of lawfulness can make a stab at redirecting their lives. The law also provides for the establishment of an adult version of "halfway houses" - prereleased guidance centers - that have proved effective with young offenders in easing the transition from prison to private life.

Myrl E. Alexander, director of the Bureau of Prisons, said in an interview a surprising number of community organizations have indicated a willingness to accept workers from nearby institutions. But he said there would be a gradual approach to the program. "We're going to start very conservatively and build up some experience so that our mistakes will be held to a minimum," explained the white-haired veteran of two decades of prison work. During early months of the work release program implementation will be limited to 10 institutions where minimum custody is the rule rather than the exception. Eligible prisoners from the major security institutions such as those at Leavenworth, Kan., and Marion, Ill., may be transferred to prisons taking part in the program.

These are the institutions at Englewood, Colo.; El Reno, Okla.; Chillicothe, Ohio; Terminal Island, Calif.; Ashland, Ky.; Petersburg, Va.; the National Training School in Washington; Seagoville, Tex.; Milan, Mich.; and Danbury, Conn. No notorious convicts imprisoned for crimes of violence will be in the program. Only prisoners who can use the experience in advance of their release or who can help support their families by using skills they already have will be considered. The prisoners will stand ready to advance the men up to $100 for expenses until their first paycheck is received. They will also outfit them with their first suits of clothing until they can afford to buy their own. The prisoners will pay all their own expenses, and their excess earnings other than those used for family support will be held for them until they are released from prison.

PROTESTANTISM AND THE RIGHT TO WORK By Dr. Frederick Curtis Fowler, First Presbyterian Church, Duluth, Minnesota

The fundamental belief of Protestant Christianity embraces the principle of individual liberty which is the essence of Right To Work laws. Logically, therefore, Protestants will support voluntary unionism; never compulsion.

It can be seen clearly that freedom of association is the real issue at stake when we examine the terms necessary to a discussion of the Right To Work principle, and when we look at Right To Work legislation from an historical viewpoint.

The rise of industry in the United States really began about the turn of the 20th century. It made possible the unequaled high level of prosperity now enjoyed by Americans, but it also brought new problems and situations endangering the liberty of the individual worker. Many employers at that time required "yellow dog" contracts, which stipulated that the worker could not belong to the newly-organized unions if he wished to get and keep a job. This was such a clear infringement of the worker's freedom of association, and of his right to organize in order to improve his working conditions, that many states, and ultimately Congress, rightfully outlawed "yellow dog" contracts.

Also, due to the protection given them under such legislation as the Railway Labor Act and the Wagner Act, unions grew rapidly during the 1920's and '30's. The Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO), formed in 1938, and the American Federation of Labor (AFL), organized in 1886, merged in 1955. Like the rise of Big Business, this was not an unmixing blessing. For one thing, the union professionals now began to insist on the same infringement of the individual worker's rights as the employers previously had done. Whereas the employers had demanded non-membership in unions, union officials now began to demand union membership as a condition of employment. Such agreements, where union membership is required in order to hold a job, are "union shop" or "closed shop" contracts.

LAWS ARE "PRO-WORKER"

The Taft-Hartley Act, passed by Congress in 1947, recognized the right of states to pass and enforce Right To Work laws. Now in effect in 19 states, these Right To Work laws protect the freedom of the individual worker to decide for himself whether the services of a particular union are worthwhile and desirable. Most of them explicitly outlaw both the "yellow dog" and the "union shop" types of contracts. They thus act as a deterrent to both the employer and the union professional who want to deprive the worker of his right to decide whether he should join a union. They clearly serve as a means to safeguard Christian conscience and responsibility to God.

Right To Work laws are not "anti-union"—rather they are "pro-worker!" And they cannot possibly "wreck unions," as some opponents claim, because unions are protected both by state and federal law in various ways.

It is unfortunate that some clergymen and lay people who were so quick to recognize the injustice of "yellow dog" contracts, have failed to realize that today it is the union officer who is endangering the freedom of the worker. Such "reactionaries" are still living in the 1930's, when the unions were struggling for existence and it was the policy to accord them special privileges. Such persons find it hard to adjust their thoughts to 1965, when unions are a powerful and established entity. We need only to think of the widespread corruption revealed by the McClellan Labor Rackets Committee, and to remember that Communists have infiltrated some powerful unions, to understand why the freedom of association guaranteed by Right To Work is so important to Christian workers.

WOULD RETARD RELATIONS

Here and there a handful of functionaries acting for church groups have "approved" formal statements aiding compulsory unionism.

One such statement reads that "union membership as a basis of continued employment should be neither required by law nor forbidden by law." Actually, this "hands-off" policy would throw back labor-management relations several decades to the era of survival-of-the-stronger. For if the government is not going to intervene by prohibiting union shop contracts, it likewise should not intervene by prohibiting yellow dog contracts.

By the curious reasoning of this statement, if the employer were stronger than the union, he could force the worker to refrain from joining a union; and if the union were stronger than the employer, it could force the workers to join the union against their wishes. Such is the statement's strange conception of "collective bargaining!" It completely neglects the wishes of the individual workers, and makes them the pawns of two opposing forces. It places the unions' freedom above the freedom of its members. I believe in protecting the individual citizen from the tyranny of management or labor. And no Church with Christian concern should refuse to speak out against two private parties agreeing to a contract which affects a third party, without that third party's consent.

How foreign this is to the traditional position taken by, for example, Presbyterians! In the early days of our Nation, Presbyterians were among the leaders of those known as "dissenters"—those who led the fight for religious freedom, and for abolition of compulsory support of the established churches in nine of the original colonies.

Three requirements were made of citizens who lived in these nine states; they must (1) attend the official church, (2) pay taxes for support of the church, and (3) subscribe to the official church ideology. Resistance to this compulsion was extensive, so that, by the time of the American Revolution, only financial support through taxation was required of those citizens who were not members of the established church.

COMPULSION REJECTED

Then, in 1786, came the crucial struggle over passage of the Virginia Statute for Religious Freedom, which was designed to prohibit such compulsory payments to the established churches. It is relevant to the present controversy over Right To Work that Patrick Henry, the famous orator, argued that since religion promotes happiness and prosperity for all, everyone should be compelled to contribute to the church. He advanced much the same "free rider" argument as today's union professionals, who argue that unions help all the workers, and that every worker therefore should be forced to contribute dues.

This reasoning was rejected by the Virginia House of Delegates, and eventually in all the states. The Statute for Religious Freedom was passed. Thomas Jefferson, its author declared that "to compel a man to furnish contributions of money to the propagation of opinions which he disbelieves and abhors is sinful and tyrannical."

Justice Abner McCall, in a Texas Supreme Court decision, adds that "it was upon this issue of compulsory support of private organizations that the dissenters in Virginia in 1788, led by Elder John Leland, resisted the movement to adopt the proposed Federal Constitution until its proponents agreed to a Bill of Rights, including as its first provision, the first amendment, the guarantee that there would be no establishment of religion. It is well to remember that at the time of the adoption of the first amendment that neither ideological conformity nor even formal halfway covenant membership was any longer being demanded. The chief evil to be forever prohibited was compulsory support of a private organization by those who did not subscribe to its program."

There is no basic difference between the financial support of the churches which once was required in the colonies, and the requirement today that workers pay compulsory dues to labor unions, whose aims and political bias may be opposite those of the worker. Both groups are private organizations in the United States. When we compel support of one private organization today, the way is prepared for similar infringements of freedom in the future. Jefferson's words—that such compulsory support of a private organization is "sinful and tyrannical"—are still applicable.

COERCION OR FREEDOM

The basic choice today is again between coercion and freedom. Union security or union maintenance should not depend upon force but upon service. He that is greatest among you "is the one who serves the others," is a God-given principle. It is not he that uses force, he that "takes the sword." He will perish by it.

The Right not to belong must of necessity be as basic as the Right to belong. If a union were dominated by those who blaspheme God, or by Communists, or by those who compelled me to supply money to support politicians whose beliefs were contrary to mine, I have the right not to belong to it and it would be my Christian duty to carry out that right. Unions have engaged in violence and other unlawful activities. Should I be obliged to be a member and financially support such a union? Never!

One can find innumerable instances where unions have truly served their members, have protected their interests, have happy and successful relationship with employers, and still have not usurped the right not to belong to the union.

Let us take a stand today with those early patriots who fought for freedom of association. Let us either restore the "right" of the employer to forbid union membership or deny the "right" of the union to compel union membership. Both management and union should be treated the same, either equally free or equally restrained. But let us not throw labor-management relations back to the days of the yellow dog contract! I am sure that most Protestants, both clergy and lay people, will agree that our direction should be toward protecting individual freedom and that, in the tradition of the early "dissenters," we should be leading the battle for voluntary unionism and freedom of association.

Compulsory unionism is one of the greatest threats to individual freedom facing America today. We need a National Right to Work law to preserve these freedoms for ourselves and our children. All of us have an important stake in such a law.

The postponement of a show-down in the United Nations over the $52.6 million owed by the U.S.S.R. is a little like doctors calling off a scheduled operation at the last minute--an operation that might very well kill the patient -- in hopes of finding a less radical method of treatment.

The surgery specified by the U.N. charter, removal of Russia's vote in the General Assembly, is indeed serious to the welfare of the organization than by the humiliation of being internationally blackballed.

The United States, which has been the power behind the drive to force the Russians to pay up, realizes that neither it nor the world has anything to gain by such humiliation. Fortunately, the Soviets seem to be beginning to realize that their adamant stand is on increasingly shaky ground, especially since the World Court removed the last legal foundation.

From the Russian point of view, they are being forced to contemplate paying out good rubles as their share of U.N. peacekeeping costs in the Middle East, the Congo and other places where, if they did not actually spend many other rubles helping foment the troubles in the first place, they hoped to profit from them.

This is not the first time the Soviets have worked outside the U. N. to frustrate its objectives (sending arms to the Red Chinese to aid their U. N. branded aggression in Korea, for example). But it will be the first time they have been called upon to pay at both ends. Since surgery is out, some kind of easily swallowed medicine will have to be concocted -- some sort of face - saving compromise which will satisfy neither the Communists nor hard-line anti-Communists, but which will at least result in some cash from the Kremlin in getting the U. N. over another crisis.

It should be remembered that a few other nations, including France and Nationalist China, have also refused to pay varying amounts of special assessments for varying reasons. Whatever the U. S. insists on as sauce for the Communist goose must fairly be sauce for any non-Communist ganders.

It is also conceivable that the United States may someday find itself on the wrong side of the U.N. charter and facing a jury of international doctors. That is why the pill prescribed for the Russian ailment today must not be too bitter.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Labor Priests On Fighting

Fronts.

New York: -- At virtually all national AFL-CIO conventions -- somewhere near the press table -- a handsome, youngish-looking priest can be noticed in deep and swift conversation with a proletarian garbed chap whom insiders recognize as the Communist party's labor expert and propagandist.

But these insiders fear not for the soul of the clergyman. They know he is Monsignor George Higgins. And they know he is getting the better of the argument with the Communist columnist, George Morris.

They are aware of it because there are few men who know American and world labor -- its intricacies and intrigues, its crusaders and corruptors -- as does Father Higgins.

There are few labor functions at which one does not encounter the gentle Monsignor, especially in Washington where he is with the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Thus he has become an intimate friend of AFL-CIO prexy George Meany, himself a devout Catholic -- and of the Lutheran Walter Reuther, too, among hundreds of others. Father George thus is, in effect, an unofficial "envoy" to the House of Labor. In a sense he is labor's "envoy," too, and his voice has been heard in high Vatican councils.

He is, however, one of many "labor priests" who spring to mind as one meditates over the visit of Pope Paul to the UN glass house, so different from the Vatican halls, and to the concrete canyons, so different from the hills near Rome where rests the Castel Gandolfo.

A bustling world has little noticed the fighting priests, famed inside labor all the way from the waterfront of the Philippines to Philadelphia and New York.

They've fought the mob. They've battled the Communists. Many times the priests struggled into exhaustion, which along with physical danger followed them into their schools and churches.

Right now Father Philip Carey, of New York's St. Francis Xavier Church, is in the hospital recovering from a heart attack. It was he and Father Corridan who became the famed waterfront priests when they took on the Manhattan mobs back in the fifties.

There is Father Charles Owen Rice, who in the old Pittsburgh days was always on hand when steelworkers and those of the electrical unions needed skilled infighting to beat back the Communists in the CIO. Few insiders forget Father

John Boland, the Buffalo, priest whose strong hand and soft voice actually moved him into public office in troubled days. He became regional NLRB director there, and then Chairman of the State Labor Relations Board.

And few who know the stocky, deceptively pious Father William Smith will ever forget him. He was the first, I believe, to start a modern Catholic labor school. There are many of these now training men and women to understand responsible trade unionism and the dangers and subtleties of Communist infiltration.

It was Father Smith who, in 1940, put together the Crown Heights School for Catholic Workmen in Brooklyn. Today he directs St. Peter's College's Institute of Industrial Relations, but despite harrowing hours, there always is time to duel with Jim Hoffa.

They have guts these labor priests. I've seen them walk through rings of gangsters, howling Communist operatives, and machete-carrying Castroite campesinos.

Here it's in the tradition of Baltimore's James Cardinal Gibbons of the explosive 1880s, on the Knights of Labor--the industrial unionists of that era who won the following of over 700,000 workmen -- Cardinal Gibbons went to Rome. He convinced Pope Leo XIII to endorse the Knights of Labor.

It was the first such recognition of militant labor. The Knights broke up in fratricidal battle and a new organization led by a cigar maker, Sam Gompers, survived.

Then in 1891, Pope Leo issued the first of a Catholic trilogy of social encyclicals -- "Rerum Novarum" (New Things). It spoke of labor's rights to organize for bread, dignity and freedom.

Four decades later, Pope Pius XI issued "Quadragesimo Anno" (Forty Years After). It updated and reaffirmed Pope Leo's encyclical. Finally came John XXIII's 1961 encyclical -- "Mater et Magistra" -- (Mother and Teacher).

Through the trilogy ran the central theme of a socially responsible society in Pope Leo's words, "Every man has by nature the right to possess property as his own."

Yet, despite the basic tradition, let no one think each labor priest, in big city or in the jungle's edge, in the field or near the factories, thinks alike.

They have their faith in common. And their courage. But these days they do intellectual battle amongst themselves, too.

And that is good. It's the kind of stimulation labor needs.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

(Editors' Note: Drew Pearson today reports on one of the would-be socialist Republics of Africa.)

ACCRA, Ghana -- The University of Pennsylvania can be proud of the heads of state whom it has helped to train, including President Makarios of Cyprus and President Azikiwe of Nigeria. Staid Philadelphians might debate whether to be proud of my onetime career as a Penn instructor. But undebatable is the reputation earned by Kwame Nkrumah, President of the African Republic of Ghana, for being the sourest odd-ball ever to attend the University founded by Benjamin Franklin.

Nkrumah calls himself "Osagyefo" which means "Son of God," though sometimes he varies it with "Redeemer." And he acts as if he considered himself both. He has built some 100 statues of himself in various parts of Ghana, almost as many as those built to himself by Joe Stalin.

And for a long time Nkrumah cherished the ambition to be head of Pan-Africa or a United States of Africa. The basic idea was good, because many African Republics are too weak to stand alone and in the early days of African independence, Nkrumah acquired quite a following.

When he began not only introducing socialism to Ghana--but trying to spread it to the rest of Africa, however, his popularity dropped drastically. Especially it dropped when it became known that the Sawata terrorists, after being trained by the Chinese in Guerrilla warfare and assassination techniques, were sent from China to Ghana as a base from which to operate.

HEADQUARTERS FOR

TERROR This caused the Prime Minister of Nigeria to remark: "If you want to find crime in Africa, go to Accra."

It also caused several African leaders led by President Felix Houphouet -- Boigny of the Ivory Coast to announce that they would boycott Nkrumah's organization for Africa unity meeting scheduled for October 21 unless he cleaned out the terrorists.

"Nkrumah has been wanting to come to see me to talk about the OAU meeting," President Houphouet -- Boigny told me, "but I could not possibly let him come to Abidjan. We don't have enough police to protect him."

Socialism has bogged down as badly in Ghana as Nkrumah's popularity. He established his own government airline which is now losing $3,000,000 a year. Despite this Ghana airways recently ordered three VC-10's, the latest British jets. Nkrumah also satisfied his ego by opening more than 50 Ghanaian embassies around the world, in contrast to 10 or 12 opened by most African Republics.

He built up a big army, navy, and air force, though Ghana has no need for them unless he attacks his neighbors. And when Ghana collected a reserve to insure cocoa growers against price drops, Nkrumah's government spent the money. Result is that with the price of cocoa down 50 per cent, Ghana has a cocoa surplus of 600,000 tons on hand and no money with which to remunerate the cocoa growers.

This, plus other spending, has put the Ghanaian government in such desperate straits that Nkrumah tried to borrow $800,000 from the United States, Britain and France. When he got rebuffed he went, hat in hand, to the International Monetary Fund.

The fund's financial experts have now recommended drastic curtailment of various government projects: Ghana Airways, the State Mining Corporation, the State Farms Corporation, a system of state farms patterned after Russia's, the Ghana Tire Service Corporation, the Ghana Cannery, and the Paper Conversion Corporation.

The Monetary fund has also recommended curtailment of Ghana's many embassies, a cut in defense spending; also frowns on the $4,000,000 new frigate being built for the Ghanaian navy.

Ghana's minister of finance has accepted these recommendations in principle. Whether they are carried out in detail and whether Ghana actually gets the $800,000,000 remains to be seen.

Meanwhile the Communist countries, which Nkrumah has so frequently supported, have increased their purchases of cocoa to help bail out their friend. But they have not offered to put up the $800 million, first because it would strain their balance of payments; second, foreign aid is getting as unpopular in the Communist countries as in some parts of the USA.

As a result, Kwame Nkrumah, "Son of God" and onetime aspirant to head the United States of Africa, will be lucky to remain as head of his own shaky republic.

AFRICAN MERRY-GO-ROUND

The State Department has picked some top-notch ambassadors and personnel to man U. S. embassies in Africa. Ambassadors Mercer Cook in Senegal, George A. Morgan in the Ivory Coast and Elbert G. Matthews in Nigeria are skilled, dedicated diplomats. U. S. Ambassadors in the rest of Africa, some of whom I visited on previous trips, were of equally high caliber.

State Department personnel have come a long way from the cookie-pushing days when the foreign service was first founded. . . . When the daughter of the Ivory Coast's president was married to the son of the President of Upper Volta, the invitations read: "Felix Houphouet -- Boigny, farmer, President of the Republic, invites you, etc." . . . Houphouet-Boigny, who is prouder of his farming than of Ivory Coast prosperity, took me on a tour of his farm. He was digging up surplus coffee plants, cultivating the land with Massey-Ferguson tractors and disc harrows, replacing it in yams. "Since we can't sell all our coffee," he explained, "we are trying to grow enough food for our own people."

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — "You hear so much about bad kids. It almost seems like the good kids are forgotten," believes Mrs. James C. Tarbox, who has her own way of showing she remembers the good ones.

Mrs. Tarbox, who has no children of her own, gives an annual backyard party for all the kids in the neighborhood. Three dozen or so little guests enjoy hotdogs, fruit, chocolate milk, ice cream and cupcakes they help mix and frost themselves.

Club Has Lunch Meeting Sept. 23

The Bess Truman Club of New Madrid County met at LaFont's Cafe, Portageville, Thursday, Sept. 23, for their regular monthly meeting, with four visitors and seven members in attendance.

After the luncheon was served, the business session was presided over by vice president, Mrs. Hubert Milem, due to the absence of the president, Mrs. Charles Pikey Jr. who was ill. The Pledge to the Flag of the United States of America was repeated in unison as was The Lord's Prayer. Minutes were read and approved. The treasurer's report was read; she also informed the club that the book "Gift of Prophecy" had been placed in the New Madrid County Library in memory of Mrs. P. M. Barton, a late member of the club.

There was a discussion on the Missouri Federation of Women's Democratic Clubs Convention, October 3, 4, 5, at the Ramada Inn, Jefferson City with several of the ladies planning to attend.

Mrs. Hal Hunter Sr., and Mrs. Charles Pikey Sr., are still unable to attend the meetings because of illness.

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a woman who decided the day my daughter became a mother that I would never interfere with her in any way, and above all that I would never tell her how to raise her children. Something has come up now and I'm finding it difficult to keep quiet. Please advise me because this may be a matter of life and death.

Yesterday while we were having coffee I asked my daughter where the 3-year-old was. It seemed very quiet in the youngster's room. "Oh, Martha," was the answer. "I was horrified to find that my daughter would leave such a small child alone in the tub. I went to see what was going on. There was Martha, having a great time with her rubber toys and celluloid boat. My daughter said, 'See -- she's perfectly fine.'"

Ann, it takes only a few seconds for a tragedy to occur and I am worried sick that something might happen. What is your opinion? PANICKY GRANNY

Dear Granny: No child under seven years of age should be left alone to play in a bathtub. Many people do not know that a child can drown in a few inches of water if he falls face first. I urge you to call this to your daughter's attention. This is not interference.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl who will be 17 very soon. My problem is that I am going with a boy who isn't 16 yet. I am not old enough to think seriously about any boy and I know it. Les and I are just good friends, but the kids in my crowd have really been piling it on. When one of my girl friends heard Les and I were going to the band concert together, she said, "You ought to charge his mother 50¢ an hour for baby sitting."

I asked my parents if they thought it was wrong for me to go with a boy who is a year and a half younger than I am and they said it is up to me to decide.

Please, Ann, tell me what is your opinion? I like Les a lot and he is much more mature for his age than some of the boys who are 17.--TROUBLES

To Observe World Wide Communion

Sunday morning some of our congregations will be reaching the billion mark as nearly that many Christians will kneel for Holy Communion, demonstrating the truth of the 1965 World Wide Communion theme, "We Have a Fellowship." The Lord's Supper will penetrate the walls of brick and mortar, the curtains of iron and bamboo and for that moment at least, differences of race, color, and political persuasion will be erased.

Among the local churches participating in the observance will be First Christian Church, St. Paul's Episcopal Church, First Methodist Church, and Hunter Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Crites Is Hostess To Committee Meet

The Executive Committee of Matthews Elementary P. T. A. met Tuesday evening, Sept. 28, at the home of Mrs. Allen Crites.

The meeting was called to order by President Clyde Launius. Secretary and treasurer's report was read and approved. Various items of business were discussed and reports were given by each project chairman.

At the next P. T. A. meeting, Oct. 12, the subject will be "Understanding Mental Health."

Those who didn't get to pay membership dues at the last meeting can see Mrs. Weissman at the October meeting. All business finished, the meeting was ended with a visit over pie and coffee.

Dear Troubles: Your parents gave you good guidance. If you are not uncomfortable about the age difference, simply ignore the comments from the bleachers. How a boy conducts himself is more important than when he was born.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been reading your column for many years but never has a letter made me so furious as the one from the donkey who said he would gladly have kissed the draft board doctor had he known homosexuals did not have to serve in the armed forces.

As one who loves God and country I am happy his kind are in the minority. He does not deserve to live in a country that others fought and died for.

During World War II, I volunteered for Navy duty and served 42 months -- two years of it on hot, steaming islands in the Pacific. If my service contributed to the preservation of our freedoms I do not regret a single day of it nor do I feel that my attitude is especially heroic. There were millions more like me. If you print my letter sign me, simply--MEMPHIS VOLUNTEER

Dear Volunteer: Thank you for your excellent letter. True, there were millions like you but each man who served made his own personal sacrifice--and his own special contribution. Awkward and self-conscious? Unsure of yourself? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper.

Kennett Indians Slaughtered By Bulldogs 20-6

By Don Voelker
Standard Sports Editor

The Kennett Bulldogs scorched the Kennett Indians here last night 20-6. The Bulldogs were out for blood last night and right off they started hitting, blocking, and running hard. A few seconds after Kennett kicked to the Bulldogs, Spears threw a pass that was good for ten yards. When it was the Indians turn to play ball the Bulldogs were ready for them. Kennett was stopped time after time by the Dogs, and the Indians had to kick on their 28 yard line. There was a flag on the next play and the Indians were charged with illegal formation; the penalty was declined. Sikeston lost ten yards trying to get off a pass. Again on the next play Sikeston lost eight yards trying to pass. The fourth down was up for Sikeston and the Bulldogs kicked. Kennett fumbled the ball and Terry Scudder recovered it on the Kennett 20 yard line. On the next play Scudder took up the ball and ran for five yards before he was downed. With 11 minutes and 52 seconds to go in the second quarter, Scudder again took up the ball and ran 13 yards for Sikeston's first touchdown of the game.

DOG'S SCORE

Last night was a bad night for the Indians. Everything seemed to go wrong for them. When they finally did regain possession of the ball they were either stopped dead or one of the Indians fumbled. Sikeston saw early in the game that they could give Kennett a rough time and they really started pouring the coal on. The Indians kept trying to pass but their quarter back either couldn't hit or the receivers couldn't catch the ball. Sikeston did break up several of the Indians' pass attempts. With two minutes and 28 seconds left in the second half, in the Kennett 19 yard line, Kenny Cantrell very evasively sprinted all 19 yards for the Bulldogs second touchdown. The extra point attempt was no good.

Mules Buck Indians 20-0

JACKSON - The Poplar Bluff Mules whipped the Jackson Indians last night 20-0. Larry Vaughn ran 54 yards for the Mules first touchdown and Bruce Nall kicked the extra point. After a 44 yard drive by the mules, Nall again went over from the Jackson 1 yard stripe and kicked the extra point. Larry Vaughn intercepted one of the Jackson Indian's passes and ran back for a touchdown.

Jackson had 13 first and tens and Poplar Bluff had ten. Poplar Bluff had 202 rushing yardage while the Jackson Indians had only 137. Out of 16 passes thrown by Jackson, 4 were completed for a total of 60 yards. Bluff passes 9 times for three hits and also a total of 60 yards.

Two of Poplar Bluff's top line-men last night are Steve Decker and Keith Dunn. Larry Vaughn has a good chance of being picked as Back Of The Week for his action last night.

INDIANS STOPPED

Kennett received the ball but they didn't get past their 20 yard line before they had to kick to keep the Bulldogs out of their territory. Terry Scudder ran seven yards and was downed on the Sikeston 43 yard line. Scudder again took the ball and ran seven more yards until two Indians tackled him. One of the Indians hit him high, the other hit him low and Terry Scudder, badly shaken up, was helped off the field. Kenny Cantrell then ran 9 yards and the Bulldogs tried for a pass but it was broken up by the Indians.

KENNETT GETS TOUGH

In the third quarter the Indians realized that they were really going to have to get tough to even score and when they got possession of the ball they hung on for dear life. Kennett Indian Goodrich, ran 19 yards for a touchdown. The Indians began to play harder, and they really began to look like a team. From the top of the third half until the end of the game the Kennett Indians played rough football. It was too late for the Indians, however; because the Bulldogs had the look of glory in their grasp and they kept it throughout the rest of the game. One of the Indians ran back for a pass, slipped and caused Kennett to lose nine yards.

ELLISON BLOCKS PASS

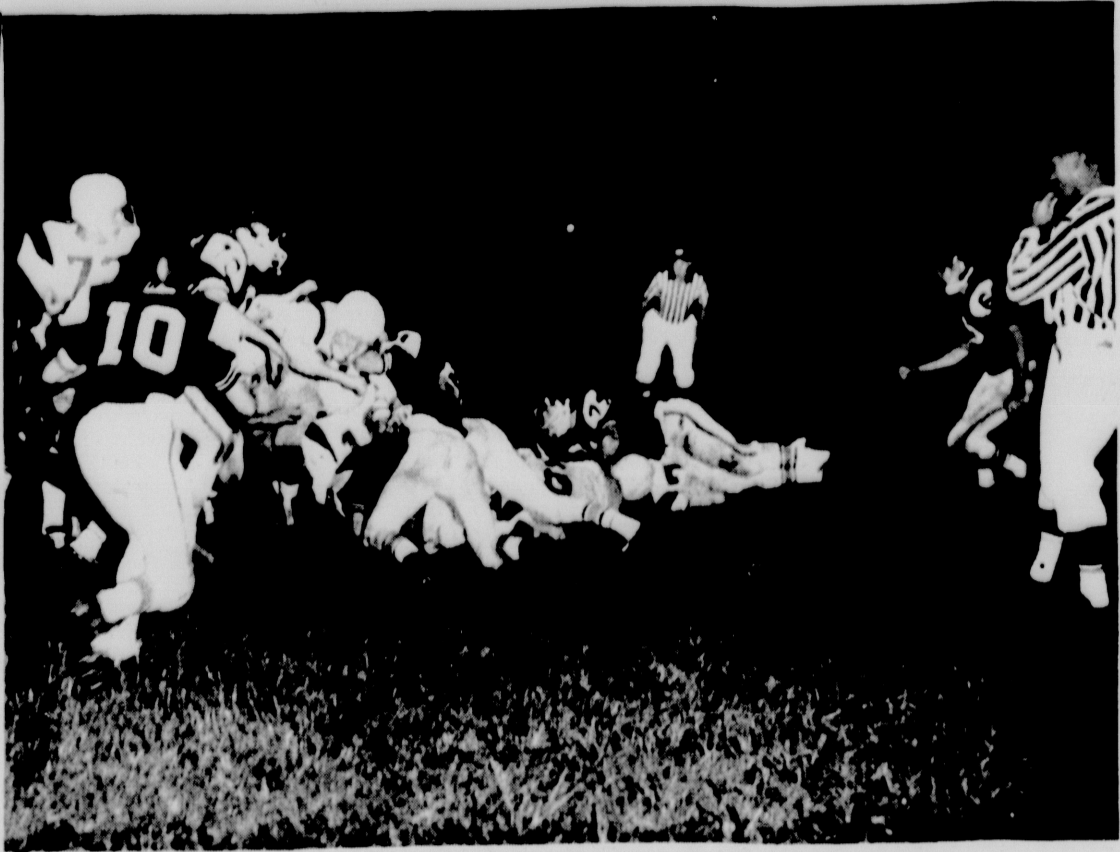

In the fourth quarter Max Ellison knocked a Kennett pass out of the air by slapping down at it with both hands. He tried to hang on to the ball but the rubber pads on his arms prevented him from intercepting it. With 53 seconds left in the last quarter, the Indians were making a last chance effort to go over the goal line. A penalty was called against the Indians for grabbing a Dog face mask and Kennett was walked back 15 yards. The Kennett quarter back threw a real fine pass and Sikeston Bulldog Danny Lopp made a real fine interception and made an outstanding run from the Bulldog 22 yard line to the Kennett Indians 41 yard line. With only 13 seconds left

DANNY LOPP, 26, carries ball while Bulldog throws block.

TERRY SCUDDER, 32, tries to get out of Indian's grasp while 73, Robert Collins, and Alan Milburn, 22, rush in to help.

RON SPEARS goes over the goal line with quarter back sneak.

The Giants lose before Los Angeles finishes its game, the Dodgers would have the pennant clinched before Koufax had an opportunity to wrap it up. As the race now stands, with the Dodgers leading by two games and only two remaining, either a San Francisco loss or a Los Angeles victory ends the struggle. The best the Giants can hope for is a tie by winning their games while the Dodgers lose twice, thus forcing a playoff.

Koufax will start against the Braves' 23-game winner, Tony Cloninger. The Giants will send Ron Herbel, 11-9, against Jim O'Toole, 3-9.

In other games Friday night, Pittsburgh edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1 and Houston defeated St. Louis 4-2.

The Chicago White Sox moved into a tie with Baltimore for second place in the American League by beating Kansas City 6-1 while the Orioles split with Cleveland. Baltimore won the opener 2-0 but the Indians took the nightcap 3-2.

The Dodgers, who had won 13 games in a row, could have clinched it Friday night by winning one more, but the Braves' Denny Lemaster stood in their way. Lemaster, winning only his seventh game against 13 defeats, pitched out of his only jam in the first inning and went on to set the Dodgers down on five hits.

Claude Osteen, now 15-15, matched Lemaster until the Braves broke through for an unearned sixth inning run. Felipe Alou led off with a walk and raced to third as catcher John Roseboro picked up Mack Jones' bunt and fired the ball past third base. Osteen walked Hank Aaron intentionally, then struck out Joe Torre and got Gene Oliver to rap a sharp grounder to third baseman Jim Gilliam.

Gilliam, however, threw high to Jim Leflore in a try for a force play at second base, and Alou scored when Leflore's toss to first base was too late for an out there.

OUTDOOR TIPS

SMALL STUFF HOLDER
The screw-cap metal containers 35mm color film comes in make neat waterproof holders for small items that usually bob around loose in a tackle box. Yellow color makes them easy to locate too.

BACKLASH
When your wife isn't looking, "borrow" her crochet hook and stow in your tackle box. It's the best thing yet for picking a bad snarl out of monofilament.

FIRE STARTER
Roll newspaper in strips. Soak in paraffin. Cut in 3-inch blocks and wrap in wax paper. Burns hot and long.

Alou drove in the Braves' other run with an infield single in the seventh inning. It was no contest at San Francisco after the first five batters had swung away at Bob Bolin. Pete Rose singled, and one out later, Vada Pinson singled. Frank Robinson and Gordy Coleman then hit consecutive homers for a 4-0 lead and Sammy Ellis had more than enough working room as he posted his 22nd victory by scattering eight hits.

Before the game was over, Rose and Deron Johnson also had homered for the Reds while San Francisco Manager Herman Franks called on eight pitchers in an attempt to stem Cincinnati's 21-hit assault. Tom Haller homered for the Giants and Len Gabrielson stroked three of their eight hits off Ellis.

The Pirates won it in the ninth against the Cubs on Jim Pagan's two-run single with the bases loaded. Doubles by Chuck Harrison, Rusty Staub and winning pitcher Robin Roberts helped the Astros to a three-run second inning that got the job done against the Cardinals.

MARINATED GAME
Here's an idea. Soak "strong" game overnight in buttermilk. Removes wild flavor.

TAPED IN PLACE
A piece of adhesive tape makes a good bobber stop on monofilament line. One wrap slips easily through guides, but keeps bobber where you want it.

FISHERMAN'S STOVE
Take a 10 quart galvanized can and fill with sand about half full. Put a woman's stocking through the center and soak the sand with a gallon of kerosene. The stocking acts like a wick, burning and heating the can which radiates heat to you.

GAME CAN COUNT
Many animals can count up to one. If you want to fool a big buck, walk into woods with a pal and have the pal walk out. The deer counts one in, one out and assumes all's well... until you harvest him.

India was the seat of the ancient cotton industry.

Quail Season

JEFFERSON CITY AP - Because of a good carryover and a good nesting season, the 1965 quail hunting season will be the same length as last year, Nov. 10 through Jan. 15. The Conservation Commission Thursday set the same bag limit, also, 10 a day and 10 in possession.

Northwestern Missouri, long a desert for quail hunters, appears to have staged a comeback, biologists said. Elsewhere the crop of young quail seemed to have survived well despite heavy and frequent rains.

Second string quarter back Babb threw a pass to Bob Richardson who sprinted over the goal line and also kicked the extra point. Terry Brashers passed to Bob Rodgers who made Charleston's fourth touchdown of the night. The extra point was blocked by the Perryville Pirates.

Redbirds Drop 4-2 To Houston

The St. Louis Cardinals collided with each other and the Houston Astros Friday night in the Astrodome as the Redbirds dropped a 4-2 decision to Houston.

Mike Shannon and Curt Flood collided in right center in the second inning. The crash caused Flood to drop the ball and two Astro runners scored-enough for the victory margin. Both Shannon and Flood stayed in the game.

Tim McCarver doubled across two runs in the seventh inning for the Cardinals. Larry Jaster 2-0, the Cardinals rookie, will start for St. Louis today against the Astros, Don Arlich 0-0, a Houston rookie, will pitch for Houston. Kansas City had the same kind of luck at Chicago as the White Sox defeated them 6-1 in what had been a close game until the eighth inning. Pete Ward singled two runs home in the eighth and before it was over the White Sox had five runs and moved into a second place American League tie with Baltimore. It has been tied 1-1 until the

Dodgers In Final Round

BY MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

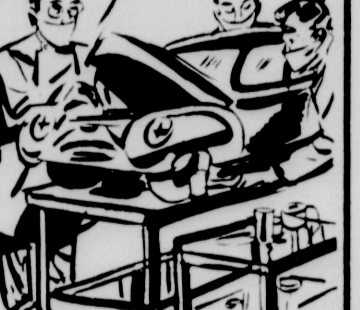

It would be fitting if Sandy Koufax clinched the National League pennant for the Los Angeles Dodgers today. But he may not get the opportunity. Koufax, whose 25 victories have led Los Angeles' drive for the pennant, is in a position to nail it down for the Dodgers, who clinched at least a tie for their third flag in seven years despite a 2-0 loss to Milwaukee Friday night.

The Dodger game will start one hour and 15 minutes after the second-place San Francisco Giants take the field against the Cincinnati club that mauled them 17-2 Friday night. The time factor is such that if ninth, Kansas City's run came in the seventh on an Ed Charles single, an infield out and a throwing error.

Fred Talbot 10-11 throws for the Athletics today at Chicago. Bruce Howard 8-8 will be on the mound for the White Sox.

The Gehl Mix-All, with economy plain feeder and exclusive crusher-feeder attachment, grinds, mixes and delivers the most uniform on-the-farm feed.

Growth Hinges On Traffic Flow

Editor's Note: This is the last of a series of six articles about a study made by the Missouri state highway department and the city of the Sikeston area to 1985.

by DAN WHITTLE

The continued growth of the Sikeston area will depend on the ability of persons and goods to move with a minimum of difficulty.

In order for Sikeston to meet growth demands a transportation plan was formulated.

The National Committee on Urban Transportation has made available information for classification of streets by service functions.

Service requirements depend on factors such as travel desires, access needs of adjacent land development, the existing street network and present and future land use.

In this Sikeston area

transportation study five classifications or functional systems were used to develop a network that will provide satisfactory traffic circulation and access in 1985.

Expressway -- These facilities are exclusively for moving large volumes of traffic and performs little or no land service functions.

This classification is reserved for multi-lane divided roads with few if any intersections.

Primary arterials -- This class of street brings traffic to and from expressways. These serve as links from the principal traffic generators within the city and important rural routes.

Secondary arterials -- This category may also bring traffic to and from the expressway. But they also serve traffic movements that do not use expressways or primary arterials.

Collectors -- This class of streets serves the internal traffic movement within an area of the city such as subdivision and connects this area.

Local -- This department has the primary function of serving only access to immediately adjacent property.

The major street network developed for the Sikeston area was an important part of the transportation study.

Proposed future needs:

Primary arterials -- In this category are included Interstate 55 and 57 and a portion of U. S. Route 60 even though these are classed as expressways. The study indicated that these routes have the adequate capacity to extend beyond 1985.

Major north-south primary arterials proposed are Main Street, (U. S. Route 61 and State Route H).

The principal east-west streets in this classification are a proposed street on the north side of the study area extending from U. S. route 61 to state route H, Malone avenue and Trotter street. South street and Greer avenue. A portion of Malone avenue, from Pine street to School street is part of a one way system operating westbound with east-bound route being the linking of Trotter street, South street and Greer avenue. This one-way system is necessary to handle traffic desires in this corridor and eliminate the need for additional right-of-way along Malone Avenue.

Secondary arterials -- In this system, the principal north-south routes include State routes BB, Business Route 60, West street, Kingshighway, New Madrid street, Ingram road, and State Route AA. A one-way system utilizing New Madrid street as southbound and Kingshighway as northbound from near Murray Lane to Tanner is expected to provide necessary capacity for travel desires to the downtown business district.

Major east-west proposed streets are Salcedo road from state route BB with a new extension to Ingram road, Tanner

POSSIBILITIES FOR HANDLING SECOND GROWTH PROBLEM IN COTTON BLOOMFIELD -- Second growth in cotton fields is quite a problem as a result of all the rainfall that we have experienced recently, and many cotton farmers are wondering what they can do about it.

Second growth presents a real problem as far as cotton harvest is concerned, and no chemical used to date has been very successful consistently in dealing with this problem. Results of the use of both defoliant and dessicants have not been too encouraging.

Very little success has been obtained in attempts to remove second-growth leaves on cotton with defoliant in experimental tests in Missouri. In the Southern states where temperatures average higher during the fall than Missouri, some success has been obtained in using Def and Folex at the rate of 1 1/2 to 2 pints of the defoliant per acre in 30 gallons of total spray mixture when applied by ground equipment or five to eight gallons of spray mixture when applied with planes. When used at these rates, these defoliant will usually remove the older leaves that are still in an active condition, but will kill the second-growth leaves that are too young to be removed by a defoliant.

After the leaves have been dead for a few days, they will become increasingly brittle. Consequently, unless cotton is picked in a relatively short period of time, this treatment could result in an increased amount of leaf trash in the lint cotton which would lower the grade and, in turn, reduce the price received for cotton. Due to this problem, it is highly important that the defoliant not be applied to more cotton than can be picked in four or five days and that picking be started as soon as second-growth leaves have been killed. As you can see from this, a delay in picking after leaves are killed could increase the amount of dry leaf trash and resulting quality problems in a hurry.

Farmers are reminded that for best results, defoliant should be applied when temperatures are 60 degrees or above, the humidity is high, and when there is little or no wind. Unless temperatures are pretty consistently above 60 degrees when defoliant are applied, results can be expected to be discouraging. It is also well to remember that yields will be cut and quality lowered unless the top bolls are mature. Mature bolls feel firm when pressed between the thumb and forefinger and cannot be sliced cleanly even with a sharp knife as the fiber strings out when you attempt to cut a boll.

The use of dessicants is suggested only as a last resort. A dessicant will kill the plant which, naturally, stops maturity. The bolls should be mature or have at least 90 percent of the bolls open before a dessicant is applied. Green leaf stain will, no doubt, be a problem in a number of cases, and, of course, this stain cannot be removed at the gin. Where this is the case, the use of a dessicant might pay. The danger of lowering the grade of cotton by increasing the amount of dry leaf trash is even more critical where a dessicant is used than where a defoliant is used. Consequently, farmers should be prepared to harvest the crop within four to five days after the dessicant is applied while leaves are still tough enough to prevent excessive leaf trash in cotton.

Arsenic acid is the only dessicant approved and recommended for use on cotton. It is sold under several different trade names. This dessicant should be applied according to the manufacturer's recommendations as found on the container label. Arsenic acid is toxic to humans, therefore, it should be applied by a custom applicator. It is also highly corrosive to equipment, so spray equipment should be thoroughly cleaned immediately after applying this chemical. Farmers are warned not to expect miracles from the use of either defoliant or dessicants to solve the second growth problem. Unless properly applied under favorable conditions and unless cotton is harvested within in a few days after applications indicated above, results will probably be discouraging.

street, Murray Lane from West street to Kingshighway and in the south part of the study area street extending from Kingshighway partially over and to existing road to State Route AA.

Collectors -- The major north-south collectors needed included Kiwanis avenue, Brannum avenue, Allen boulevard - Franklin avenue, Ranney avenue and Broadway.

Collectors proposed to serve east-west traffic are Wakefield Avenue, Smith Avenue, North Street, Murray Lane from Kiwanis avenue to West street, Gladys avenue from New Madrid street to Pine street and Ables road.

This proposed major street network is planning to adequately fill 1985 traffic needs on projections of population and vehicle registration growth.

"This study reflects much hard work and hard thinking by experts of traffic," City Manager Raymerr Miller said. "It points out the need for street improvements and will serve as a guide for implementation of such improvements. While the report is specific, it is entered to be flexible. It is possible and probable that future changes of conditions and factors will necessitate restudy of some of the recommendations."

Today in U. S. History

Today is Saturday, Oct. 2, the 275th day of 1965. There are 90 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1780, Maj. John Andre, the British officer who negotiated Benedict Arnold's attempted surrender of West Point, was hanged as a spy.

On this date In 1798, the Cherokee Indians signed a treaty allowing passage of travelers through their lands in Tennessee on their way to Kentucky.

In 1804, England mobilized to resist an expected invasion by Napoleon.

In 1865, Gen. Robert E. Lee became president of Washington and Lee University.

In 1889, the first Pan-American Conference was opened in Washington.

In 1941, German armies launched their big offensive aimed at Moscow.

Ten years ago — Yugoslavia announced an economic policy to raise the standard of living by reducing investments in heavy industries.

Five years ago — President Dwight D. Eisenhower rejected a proposal by neutralist nations that he meet with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

One year ago — The United States dropped the trial of two accused Russian spies, citing "security" as the reason.

Harvesting and Ginning In Full Swing

HAYTI — Harvesting and ginning were back in full swing most of the week despite light, scattered showers, according to the Consumer and Marketing Service, U. S. D. A. Use of mechanical pickers is on the upswing, and many gins are backlogged with cotton on gin yards. What the cotton industry needs most at this stage is a continued stretch of open, dry weather.

Movement of new-crop cotton into trade channels increased in volume as more cotton became available. Farmers sold freely at prices ranging from $2 to $5 per bale over loan levels. Grades of current ginnings are off slightly from last week. Increases were shown in Light Spotted and lower White grades.

Demand for new-crop cotton continues strong from both domestic and foreign mills. Purchases increased.

Quality of cottonseed reported this week was off slightly from a week earlier. Prices to farmers were firm, ranging mostly from $45 to $50 per ton.

The calendar of ancient Mexico contained 18 months of 20 days each, with five extra days at the end of the year being called "Nemontemi" (meaning useless), according to the Aztec Calendar Stone, which is believed to have been cut in the first or second century A.D.

Bootheel Beat Caruthersville Hopes For 'Fair' Weather

HAYTI - This is the season, or has been, for the fall festivals, fairs and carnivals in the Bootheel. Some have been experiencing unfavorable weather.

Attendance at the Delta Fair and Livestock show at Kennett last week was out the first two days due to rain.

The Legionnaires at Sikeston, however, hit a good stretch of weather with their annual cotton carnival, with their major events including the parade and main queen contest scheduled Saturday.

The Southeast Missouri District Fair at Cape Girardeau suffered from rain.

So now the members of Pemiscot County American Legion Post No. 88 at Caruthersville are wondering what the weatherman has in store for them for the 32nd annual running of the American Legion Fair, which opens Wednesday for five days through Sunday afternoon.

Last year the weatherman wasn't kind. A cold wave moved in that kept crowds away until the last two days of the event. Any time an outdoor festival or fair, is scheduled, you are at the mercy of the weather.

Since the Legion Fair is one of the few such events that runs on Sunday, the Legionnaires often say that what helps attendance the most on Saturday and Sunday, the two big days, is a good soaking rain Friday night.

The effect is to halt farm work so thousands of people in the area have time on their hands to attend the fair during the weekend.

The Caruthersville Legionnaires think they have put together one of the best all-around programs in years. Briefly, here's the run-down: On Wednesday the regional youth talent show and three professional acts will be held on the grandstand stage; on Thursday evening the queen of the fair will be presented, a judo exhibition by airman from the Blytheville SAC Base will be given, and Tony Pippen, the musical editor from Kennett, will perform-all followed by the pro show. On Saturday evening a special event will be antique car races.

For Friday, Saturday and Sunday, "The Four Fuller Brothers," a top group of young entertainers will join the pro show. On Saturday and Sunday the harness racing meet will be held each afternoon. In addition to a large carnival on the midway and the exhibition hall full of exhibits, the Legionnaires feel fortunate to have booked the display of a full scale model of the famed X-15 experimental airplane by the U. S. Air Force. This educational unit is 90 feet long, 40 feet wide and 28 feet high.

MENTAL HEALTH is a subject which a lot of people know little about, and all of us need to know more about it. I sat in on a meeting at the Pemiscot county health center in Hayti when Troy Wilson, administrator of the Dunklin county health center at Kennett, gave a rundown on progress in this field in the Bootheel.

We have a good organization working on this situation in the Bootheel, the Southeast Missouri Mental Health Association covers five counties.

This group is off the ground and doing a lot of good with clinics held in the area, but what the people in general should keep in mind is that this association is voluntary and receives no revenue from taxes. All of its operational cost must come from public subscription.

Coming up soon are drives in the five counties to acquire the funds needed for the next year's operation, and to expand its services. Plans call for and additional clinic to be conducted at the health center in Hayti, if the funds can be acquired to employ a field assistant to work in the area.

According to Troy, vast strides have been made over recent years in the treatment of mental and emotional illnesses, the most successful results being with children and young people. Most such cases can be cured with today's medical practices. He advocates adding clinics in the five-county area in order to take care of more cases of that age group, working in cooperation with the schools.

It appears, however, that many people must change their attitude toward mental and emotional illnesses. Too many appear reluctant to work in such a fine program as a volunteer because of "what people might say." It is time that we recognize that the treatment of mental and emotional illnesses is just as important as the treatment or prevention of the more common diseases. It isn't something that you sweep under the rug.

The volunteer association formed in the Bootheel for assistance in this field is the only one of its kind in the state. It has worthwhile objectives -- so let's help them.

I HAVE SOMETHING to add about that umbrella bit I discussed in this space last week--about no college student wishing to be caught dead without an umbrella on rainy days. Well, one of the boys was home from college last weekend and bought his umbrella. Just would like to note that if you haven't paid very much attention to umbrellas in recent years, be careful when you get hold of a new one.

Like nearly everything else there days, some of the new umbrellas have a little automation built into them. You press a button and they automatically fly open. Just don't press that button with anyone standing near you--or you might punch them in the eye with a rib. Just another safety suggestion...

WILL SOMEONE TELL ME how to make a pet boa constrictor eat? My snake-hobbyist son went off to college and left his pet four-foot boa on our hands to take care of, but we can't seem to get the blame thing to eat. Of course, the book says this snake can go weeks at a time without eating. We've tried frogs, but no go. Another diet is live mice, but we have no live mice. Tried to take one away from our pet cat the other night to give to the boa, but Puss wouldn't hear of it. Promptly killed it and ate it herself.

Journalists Have Goal

Newspapers Make Occasion For Experience

Constant Changes

A NEWSPAPER is an ever-changing history of current events. It records the joys, the sorrows, the large and the small that affect the average citizen's life. It changes constantly as people change, for it is a record of the people.

The Barker itself is a record of each school week, and through it the staff hopes to give a true picture of what goes on in and around the school.

Staffers have one definite goal in mind -- they want to reach the minds of those who read. Members of the staff feel that it is their purpose to follow the established journalistic practices set before them. Mistakes will be made; this is true, regardless of the persons or situations.

For these mistakes the staff asks a sincere understanding and consideration, for they are a group faced with the task of publishing a newspaper - writing, editing, proofing, photographing processes, designing the layout, writing the headlines, and pasting up the pages -- all in one week -- before the printing.

This group of students realizes that the first task of publishing the paper lies within the staff, but feels that the student body has a responsibility to aid in help and understanding of the news as it is read.

It is the staff's deepest desire that the reader will enjoy this year's Barker. It is only fair to remind the reader that proved journalistic principles will not be sacrificed to include articles designed to please one faction or group.

Staffers are striving to make the Barker a source of pride to all concerned -- students, faculty, and parents.

Prepare To Greet Pope

NEW YORK AP -- New York, which regularly showers plaudits and ticker tape on the great and famous of the world, made ready today to welcome Pope Paul VI's mission of peace.

Even by New York standards, the preparations were on a grand scale -- to match the historic importance of Monday's visit, the first to the New World by a reigning Roman Catholic pontiff.

Finishing touches were put on the Pope's crowded 14-hour schedule that includes a meeting with President Johnson, a plea for world peace before the United Nations General Assembly and a public Mass in Yankee Stadium.

In addition, the Pope will pray at St. Patrick's Cathedral, meet with Protestant and Jewish leaders and stop at the Vatican Pavilion of the New York World's Fair.

After he arrives at Kennedy Airport Monday morning, the Pope will enter a specially constructed limousine for a 24-mile motorcade to St. Patrick's. Millions are expected to crowd the route, including more than 900,000 children of the city's parochial schools who get the day off. Special areas are reserved for them.

All of New York's 26,000 policemen will be on duty Monday, most of them assigned to the papal visit. Commissioner Vincent L. Broderick has estimated the city will pay $1 million in police overtime.

In the limousine, the Pope's seat will raise him seven inches above the other passengers. The rear of the car is roofless but a transparent top is available in case of bad weather.

The Weather Bureau's extended forecast indicated a sunny and mild day.

At noon the Pope arrives at St. Patrick's where he will stop to pray and give his blessing to those inside.

After his stop at St. Patrick's, the pontiff will re-enter his limousine for the short drive to meet President Johnson in Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg's residence on the top floor of the Waldorf Towers.

Besides his address to the General Assembly, the Pope scheduled separate private meetings at the United Nations with Secretary-General U Thant and Amintore Fanfani of Italy, president of the General Assembly.

At the Yankee Stadium Mass in the evening, the Pope will deliver a short sermon in English.

Afterwards he will head for the Vatican Pavilion, his final stop before leaving from Kennedy Airport.

High Hopes
For Pope Visit

VATICAN CITY (AP) -- Ecumenical Council bishops looked today for Pope Paul's U.N. trip to bring Roman Catholicism closer to the problems of the peace-hungry modern world.

The 2,200 prelates at the council went into their weekend recess as the Pope's Monday morning departure for the United Nations headquarters in New York drew closer.

Despite the recess, there was no lull in the hectic pace that has marked this fourth and final council session since it began Sept. 14.

Four Emergencies

The Missouri Delta Community hospital received four emergency patients Friday: Lillian Byarski, Cicero, Ill., car accident; Katen Williamson, Painton, swallowed bleach; David Roach, fainted at home; David Evans, sprained right foot.

Federal Pay Hike Proves To Be Penalty

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) -- Rep. Paul Jones, Kennett Democrat, says that the citizen better look out if Uncle Sam starts giving him something.

Generous Uncle Sam gave every one receiving social security payments a seven percent boost in the amount recently approved by congress and the president.

A 10th district Missouri woman, a veteran's wife, got her $4.50 increase and then discovered it would cause her to lose $190 a year in income. She found out she could not even refuse to take the increase in payments.

This reminds Congressman Jones that "Hell is paved with good intentions." He said he and the others approved the increase with the best of intentions. But this much extra put the woman over the amount of income she could legally get and gave her less income than she had before.

Congressman Jones has introduced a resolution which provides that a person may refuse to accept an increase in payments under such circumstances. If he does refuse to accept it the increase cannot be counted as income for the person.

He says that some of the wise sayings of the past do not fit into today's conditions. He said there is an adage "one should not look a gift horse in the mouth." He says that it would be a good idea to do it -- maybe the nag is not worth what she appears to be worth at first sight.

Oust Bircher As GOP Editor

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The editor of a newsletter published by Washington Young Republicans has been ousted because he is a member of the John Birch Society.

The unpaid editor and his boss confirmed the move today. It came amid a barrage of GOP criticism aimed at the society.

The attack on Birchers began Wednesday when Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., charged the society is trying to infiltrate the GOP and said its influence should be driven from the party.

Fran Westner of Greenbelt, Md., secretary of the District of Columbia Young Republicans, said she gave George H. Miller Jr., a letter Thursday night, telling him he was through as editor of the newsletter.

To Clear Land For Center

Clearing of land for the Kingsway Plaza Shopping Center, South Kingshighway, will begin in 10 days, according to George Staples, Jr., Charleston, secretary and leasing agent for Kingsway Plaza Corporation.

He said that a contract for clearing 31.5 acres has been awarded to L. H. Starnes of Poplar Bluff.

There will be two stages of construction. The first will begin March 1, and will be completed by Sept. 1.

The second phase is scheduled to begin in 1966 and be finished March 1, 1967 with a 30-store center employing 450 when in operation.

The center will have a 2,564 car parking area. In addition to the stores, there will be 19,520 square feet of second floor office space.

Principal owners of the center are Harry Lowman, president, of Ashland, Ky., and Staples.

The general warranty deed for the land was delivered to the recorder's office in New Madrid Thursday.

"Due to increase in the size of some of the tenants and interest of new tenants the center had to be completely redesigned," Staples said.

"For instance, our major department store, which has not been announced, but will be soon, increased its size by 13,000 feet. Our supermarket, Safeway, increased its size by 4,000 feet and our variety store, T, G and Y, increased its size by 3,000 feet.

The land was purchased Thursday from Mary and Arnold Roth.

Architects are A. F. and Arthur Stauders of St. Louis. Staples has been leasing agent for centers in Poplar Bluff and Cape Girardeau, which are in operation.

He is now developing centers in Paducah, Ky., and Ashland, Ky.

Rules Soldier Entitled To Legal Counsel

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) -- A U.S. District Court judge has ruled that a soldier is entitled to the same legal protection at a court-martial as a civilian tried in any court.

The ruling, on a soldier's application for a writ of habeas corpus, challenges traditional concepts of military justice and is called unique by Utah's U.S. attorney William T. Thurman.

Judge A. Sherman Christensen of the Utah District, in an opinion filed Friday, said soldiers tried by special court-martial are entitled by the Constitution's Sixth Amendment to a trained lawyer as counsel.

Officers traditionally are appointed to act as defense or prosecution counsel in a court-martial, regardless of whether they are lawyers.

The uniform code of military justice requires bona fide lawyers as defense and prosecution counsel in a general court-martial, but a lower court-martial does not carry this requirement.

Pvt. James E. Stapley of Salt Lake City pleaded guilty two months ago at a special court-martial to passing eight bad checks and using disrespectful language to a noncommissioned officer. The court-martial was held here at Ft. Douglas.

Stapley said his military counsel had recommended the guilty plea. He was sentenced to 60 days imprisonment. A fine of $55 a month for six months was commuted providing he pays back $130 in bad checks.

Two weeks ago Stapley got a civilian attorney, James P. Cowley of Salt Lake City. Cowley applied for a writ of habeas corpus, a legal tool used to free persons unlawfully held in custody. Stapley was freed after 58 days of confinement.

Judge Christensen's opinion said, "the right to counsel (meaning a lawyer) of one charged with a crime before a military tribunal is as fundamental to a fair trial as before a civilian court."

Nations' Economic Signals Mixed

NEW YORK (AP) -- The final quarter of 1965 began during the week with some economic signals "go" and others sounding a warning.

Business has been good all through this year so far and some elements give every indication of staying that way, but there are economists who detect prospects of at least a leveling off.

The automobile industry, which has been booming for three years, is optimistic that there will be no letdown in the balance of 1965 and in 1966. On the other hand, the steel industry can hardly escape a slowdown. Its customers have been building up stocks of steel all year as a hedge against a strike that didn't occur. Their orders already are tapering off.

On the optimistic side, a poll of members of the National Association of Purchasing Agents shows that 35 per cent look for better business in the fourth quarter, 52 per cent expect things to be about the same and 13 per cent see a slowing.

The purchasing agents polled said their forecast last December that 1965 would be a better business year than 1964 is "in the bag" with a strong fourth quarter assured.

Also, a poll of members of the National Association of Business Economists indicated that the current economic advance will continue briskly through 1966.

Dr. George W. McKinney Jr., an economist for the Irving Trust Co. of New York and a vice president of the association, said, "An overwhelming majority expect most of the important business indicators to be significantly higher next year than in 1965."

However, the trend of business statistics which are recognized as leading -- or forecasting for the longer trend -- is not all rosy. The National Bureau of Economic Research lists 12 of these which show this characteristic consistently, in general.

Leveling off are the hiring and layoff rates in manufacturing, new orders for durable goods, commercial and industrial building awards, common stock prices, the quarterly figure of inventory change of all businesses, and liabilities of business failures.

WASHINGTON AP -- The Senate battle over 14B starts Monday. It could go on for days or weeks.

Jakarta In State Of War

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) -- Jakarta radio said today martial law had been proclaimed and the capital was in a "state of war."

The broadcast followed an announcement that forces loyal to President Sukarno had smashed an attempt to seize power.

Martial law applied in the Jakarta area and in West Java, the radio said. It also reported fighting in Central Java where a colonel was reported defying orders to renounce support of the rebels.

The country's political situation remained unclear but the radio station last reported that Sukarno, 64, still was chief of state following a coup against him Thursday, and a counter-coup by loyal army units Friday.

The radio reports gave no clue as to Sukarno's whereabouts but said he was safe and well. He appeared for the last time in public Thursday night.

PROTESTANTISM AND THE RIGHT TO WORK

By Dr. Frederick Curtis Fowler, First Presbyterian Church, Duluth, Minnesota

The fundamental belief of Protestant Christianity embraces the principle of individual liberty which is the essence of Right To Work laws. Logically, therefore, Protestants will support voluntary unionism; never compulsion. It can be seen clearly that freedom of association is the real issue at stake when we examine the terms necessary to a discussion of the Right To Work principle, and when we look at Right To Work legislation from an historical viewpoint.

The rise of industry in the United States really began about the turn of the 20th century. It made possible the unequalled high level of prosperity now enjoyed by Americans, but it also brought new problems and situations endangering the liberty of the individual worker. Many employers at that time required "yellow dog" contracts, which stipulated that the worker could not belong to the newly-organized unions if he wished to get and keep a job. This was such a clear infringement of the worker's freedom of association, and of his right to organize in order to improve his working conditions, that many states, and ultimately Congress, rightfully outlawed "yellow dog" contracts.

Also, due to the protection given them under such legislation as the Railway Labor Act and the Wagner Act, unions grew rapidly during the 1920's and '30's. The Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO), formed in 1938, and the American Federation of Labor (AFL), organized in 1886, merged in 1955. Like the rise of Big Business, this was not an unmixed blessing. For one thing, the union professionals now began to insist on the same infringement of the individual worker's rights as the employers previously had done. Whereas the employers had demanded non-membership in unions, union officials now began to demand union membership as a condition of employment. Such agreements, where union membership is required in order to hold a job, are "union shop" or "closed shop" contracts.

LAWS ARE "PRO-WORKER"

The Taft-Hartley Act, passed by Congress in 1947, recognized the right of states to pass and enforce Right To Work laws. Now in effect in 19 states, these Right To Work laws protect the freedom of the individual worker to decide for himself whether the services of a particular union are worthwhile and desirable. Most of them explicitly outlaw both the "yellow dog" and the "union shop" types of contracts. They thus act as a deterrent to both the employer and the union professional who want to deprive the worker of his right to decide whether he should join a union. They clearly serve as a means to safeguard Christian conscience and responsibility to God.

Right To Work laws are not "anti-union"—rather they are "pro-worker!" And they cannot possibly "wreck unions," as some opponents claim, because unions are protected both by state and federal law in various ways.

It is unfortunate that some clergymen and lay people who were so quick to recognize the injustice of "yellow dog" contracts, have failed to realize that today it is the union officer who is endangering the freedom of the worker. Such "reactionaries" are still living in the 1930's, when the unions were struggling for existence and it was the policy to accord them special privileges. Such persons find it hard to adjust their thoughts to 1965, when unions are a powerful and established entity. We need only to think of the widespread corruption revealed by the McClellan Labor Rackets Committee, and to remember that Communists have infiltrated some powerful unions, to understand why the freedom of association guaranteed by Right To Work is so important to Christian workers.

WOULD RETARD RELATIONS

Here and there a handful of functionaries acting for church groups have "approved" formal statements aiding compulsory unionism.

One such statement reads that "union membership as a basis of continued employment should be neither required by law nor forbidden by law." Actually, this "hands-off" policy would throw back labor-management relations several decades to the era of survival-of-the-stronger. For if the government is not going to intervene by prohibiting union shop contracts, it likewise should not intervene by prohibiting yellow dog contracts.

By the curious reasoning of this statement, if the employer were stronger than the union, he could force the worker to refrain from joining a union; and if the union were stronger than the employer, it could force the workers to join the union against their wishes. Such is the statement's strange conception of "collective bargaining!" It completely neglects the wishes of the individual workers, and makes them the pawns of two opposing forces. It places the unions' freedom above the freedom of its members. I believe in protecting the individual citizen from the tyranny of management or labor. And no Church with Christian concern should refuse to speak out against two private parties agreeing to a contract which affects a third party, without that third party's consent.

How foreign this is to the traditional position taken by, for example, Presbyterians! In the early days of our Nation, Presbyterians were among the leaders of those known as "dissenters"—those who led the fight for religious freedom, and for abolition of compulsory support of the established churches in nine of the original colonies.

Three requirements were made of citizens who lived in these nine states; they must (1) attend the official church, (2) pay taxes for support of the church, and (3) subscribe to the official church ideology. Resistance to this compulsion was extensive, so that, by the time of the American Revolution, only financial support through taxation was required of those citizens who were not members of the established church.

COMPULSION REJECTED

Then, in 1786, came the crucial struggle over passage of the Virginia Statute for Religious Freedom, which was designed to prohibit such compulsory payments to the established churches. It is relevant to the present controversy over Right To Work that Patrick Henry, the famous orator, argued that since religion promotes happiness and prosperity for all, everyone should be compelled to contribute to the church. He advanced much the same "free rider" argument as today's union professionals, who argue that unions help all the workers, and that every worker therefore should be forced to contribute dues.

This reasoning was rejected by the Virginia House of Delegates, and eventually in all the states. The Statute for Religious Freedom was passed. Thomas Jefferson, its author declared that "to compel a man to furnish contributions of money to the propagation of opinions which he disbelieves and abhors is sinful and tyrannical."

Justice Abner McCall, in a Texas Supreme Court decision, adds that "it was upon this issue of compulsory support of private organizations that the dissenters in Virginia in 1788, led by Elder John Leland, resisted the movement to adopt the proposed Federal Constitution until its proponents agreed to a Bill of Rights, including as its first provision, the first amendment, the guarantee that there would be no establishment of religion. It is well to remember that at the time of the adoption of the first amendment that neither ideological conformity nor even formal halfway covenant membership was any longer being demanded. The chief evil to be forever prohibited was compulsory support of a private organization by those who did not subscribe to its program."

There is no basic difference between the financial support of the churches which once was required in the colonies, and the requirement today that workers pay compulsory dues to labor unions, whose aims and political bias may be opposite those of the worker. Both groups are private organizations in the United States. When we compel support of one private organization today, the way is prepared for similar infringements of freedom in the future. Jefferson's words—that such compulsory support of a private organization is "sinful and tyrannical"—are still applicable.

COERCION OR FREEDOM

The basic choice today is again between coercion and freedom. Union security or union maintenance should not depend upon force but upon service. He that is greatest among you "is the one who serves the others," is a God-given principle. It is not he that uses force, he that "takes the sword." He will perish by it. The Right not to belong must of necessity be as basic as the Right to belong. If a union were dominated by those who blaspheme God, or by Communists, or by those who compelled me to supply money to support politicians whose beliefs were contrary to mine, I have the right not to belong to it and it would be my Christian duty to carry out that right. Unions have engaged in violence and other unlawful activities. Should I be obliged to be a member and financially support such a union? Never!

One can find innumerable instances where unions have truly served their members, have protected their interests, have happy and successful relationship with employers, and still have not usurped the right not to belong to the union.

Let us take a stand today with those early patriots who fought for freedom of association. Let us either restore the "right" of the employer to forbid union membership or deny the "right" of the union to compel union membership. Both management and union should be treated the same, either equally free or equally restrained. But let us not throw labor-management relations back to the days of the yellow dog contract! I am sure that most Protestants, both clergy and lay people, will agree that our direction should be toward protecting individual freedom and that, in the tradition of the early "dissenters," we should be leading the battle for voluntary unionism and freedom of association.

***

Compulsory unionism is one of the greatest threats to individual freedom facing America today. We need a National Right to Work law to preserve these freedoms for ourselves and our children. All of us have an important stake in such a law.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

(Editors's Note: Drew Pearson today reports on one of the would-be socialist Republics of Africa.)

ACCRA, Ghana -- The University of Pennsylvania can be proud of the heads of state whom it has helped to train, including President Makarios of Cyprus and President Akiwile of Nigeria. Staid Philadelphians might debate whether to be proud of my onetime career as a Penn instructor. But undebatable is the reputation earned by Kwame Nkrumah, President of the African Republic of Ghana, for being the sourest odd-ball ever to attend the University founded by Benjamin Franklin.

Nkrumah calls himself "Osagyefo" which means "Son of God," though sometimes he varies it with "Redeemer." And he acts as if he considered himself both. He has built some 100 statues of himself in various parts of Ghana, almost as many as those built to himself by Joe Stalin.

And for a long time Nkrumah cherished the ambition to be head of Pan-Africa or a United States of Africa. The basic idea was good, because many African Republics are too weak to stand alone and in the early days of African independence, Nkrumah acquired quite a following.

When he began not only introducing socialism to Ghana but trying to spread it to the rest of Africa, however, his popularity dropped drastically. Especially it dropped when it became known that the Savana terrorists, after being trained by the Chinese in Guerrilla warfare and assassination techniques, were sent from China to Ghana as a base from which to operate.

HEADQUARTERS FOR

TERROR

This caused the Prime Minister of Nigeria to remark: "If you want to find crime in Africa, go to Accra."

It also caused several African leaders led by President Felix Houphouet - Boigny of the Ivory Coast to announce that they would boycott Nkrumah's organization for Africa unity meeting scheduled for October 21 unless he cleaned out the terrorists.

"Nkrumah has been wanting to come to see me to talk about the OAU meeting," President Houphouet - Boigny told me, "but I could not possibly let him come to Abidjan. We don't have enough police to protect him."

Socialism has bogged down as badly in Ghana as Nkrumah's popularity. He established his own government airline which is now losing $3,000,000 a year. Despite this Ghana Airways recently ordered three VC-10's, the latest British jets. Nkrumah also satisfied his ego by opening more than 50 Ghanaian embassies around the world, in contract to 10 or 12 opened by most African Republics.

He built up a big army, navy, and air force, though Ghana has no need for them unless he attacks his neighbors. And when Ghana collected a reserve to insure cocoa growers against price drops, Nkrumah's government spent the money. Result is that with the price of cocoa down 50 per cent, Ghana has a cocoa surplus of 600,000 tons on hand and no money with which to remunerate the cocoa growers.

This, plus other spending, has put the Ghanaian government in such desperate straits that Nkrumah tried to borrow $800,000,000 from the United States, Britain and France. When he got rebuffed he went, hat in hand, to the International Monetary Fund.

The fund's financial experts have now recommended drastic curtailment of various government projects: Ghana Airways, the State Mining Corporation, the State Farms Corporation, a system of state farms patterned after Russia's, the Ghana Tire Service Corporation, the Ghana Cannery, and the Paper Conversion Corporation.

The Monetary fund has also recommended curtailment of Ghana's many embassies, a cut in defense spending; also frowns on the $4,000,000 new frigate being built for the Ghanaian navy.

Ghana's minister of finance has accepted these recommendations in principle. Whether they are carried out in detail and whether Ghana actually gets the $800,000,000 remains to be seen.

Meanwhile the Communist countries, which Nkrumah has so frequently supported, have increased their purchases of cocoa to help bail out their friend. But they have not offered to put up the $800 million, first because it would strain their balance of payments; second, foreign aid is getting as unpopular in the Communist countries as in some parts of the USA.

As a result, Kwame Nkrumah, "Son of God" and onetime aspirant to head the United States of Africa, will be lucky to remain as head of his own shaky republic.

AFRICAN MERRY-GO-ROUND

The State Department has picked some top-notch ambassadors and personnel to man U. S. embassies in Africa. Ambassadors Mercer Cook in Senegal, George A. Morgan in the Ivory Coast and Elbert G. Mathews in Nigeria are skilled, dedicated diplomats.

U. S. Ambassadors in the rest of Africa, some of whom I visited on previous trips, were of equally high caliber.

... State Department personnel have come a long way from the cookie-pushing days when the foreign service was first founded. ... When the daughter of the Ivory Coast's president was married to the son of the President of Upper Volta, the invitations read: "Felix Houphouet - Boigny, Farmer, President of the Republic, invites you, etc." ... Houphouet - Boigny, who is prouder of his farming than of Ivory Coast prosperity, took me on a tour of his farm. He was digging up surplus coffee plants, cultivating the land with Massey-Ferguson tractors and disc harrows, replacing it in yams.

"Since we can't sell all our coffee," he explained, "we are trying to grow enough food for our own people."

well as you, possibly better. Always talk directly to him, not through his companion. He's got pride, too.

THOSE, TOO

He: "If a man steals, no matter what, he will live to regret it."

She: "How about those kisses you used to steal before we were married?"

He: "You heard what I said."

But I can take care of myself.

In case of danger, I have this cutlass that I carry around with me. When there is a real emergency, I press the handle and it turns into a cane, so I can get sympathy.

The first known case of termites infesting a human being was reported recently in Hialeah, Fla. Physicians found live termites -- wood-eating insects -- in the lower abdomen of a woman who had complained of cramps. Her recovery was uneventful.

Asking a woman her age is like buying a used car. You know the speedometer has been turned back, but you don't know how far.

The postponement of a showdown in the United Nations over the $52.6 million owed by the U.S.S.R. is a little like doctors calling off a scheduled operation at the last minute--an operation that might very well kill the patient -- in hopes of finding a less radical method of treatment.

The surgery specified by the U.N. charter, removal of Russia's vote in the General Assembly, is indeed serious to contemplate. Russia, is not the only nation wishing to avoid its though its concern is motivated less by thoughts of the welfare of the organization than by the humiliation of being internationally blackballed.

The United States, which has been the power behind the drive to force the Russians to pay up, realizes that neither it nor the world has anything to gain by such humiliation. Fortunately, the Soviets seem to be beginning to realize that their adamant stand is on increasingly shaky ground, especially since the World Court removed the last legal foundation.

From the Russian point of view, they are being forced to contemplate paying out good rubles as their share of U.N. peacekeeping costs in the Middle East, the Congo and other places where, if they did not actually spend many other rubles helping foment the troubles in the first place, they hoped to profit from them.

This is not the first time the Soviets have worked outside the U. N. to frustrate its objectives (sending arms to the Red Chinese to aid their U. N. branded aggression in Korea, for example). But it will be the first time they have been called upon to pay at both ends. Since surgery is out, some kind of easily swallowed medicine will have to be concocted -- some sort of face - saving compromise which will satisfy neither the Communists nor hard-line anti-Communists, but which will at least result in some cash from the Kremlin in getting the U. N. over another crisis.

It should be remembered that a few other nations, including France and Nationalist China, have also refused to pay varying amounts of special assessments for varying reasons. Whatever the U. S. insists on as sauce for the Communist goose must fairly be sauce for any non-Communist ganders.

It is also conceivable that the United States may someday find itself on the wrong side of the U. N. charter and facing a jury of international doctors. That is why the pill prescribed for the Russian ailment today must not be too bitter.

DRESS TIPS: Do not depend on the original adjustment of a pair of suspenders to keep your trousers hanging correctly. Suspenders -- and belts -- often stretch and need readjustment. ... Packing Tip: It's a problem, when packing, to keep hair brushes from getting crushed, cosmetics from being broken, etc. Roll a shirt cardboard into a tube large enough to hold the items, and your problem is solved.

Doc Duncan Says

Si aint this inflation an high prices gonna hobble our exports?

No, you see fur the past decade Unks been lending furren Nations the money to buy our goods. Then they don't pay that money back, so's if they don't have to pay they don't care bout the high price. What do they care bout expenses, so's they aint out nothin?

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Labor Priests On Fighting Fronts.

New York: -- At virtually all national AFL-CIO conventions -- somewhere near the press table -- a handsome, youngish-looking priest can be noticed in deep and swift conversation with a proletarian garbed chap whom insiders recognize as the Communist party's labor expert and propagandist.

But these insiders fear not for the soul of the clergyman. They know he is Monsignor George Higgins. And they know he is getting the better of the argument with the Communist columnist, George Morris.

They are aware of it because there are few men who know American and world labor -- its intricacies and intrigues, its crusaders and corrupters -- as does Father Higgins.

There are few labor functions at which one does not encounter the gentle Monsignor, especially in Washington where he is with the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Thus he has become an intimate friend of AFL-CIO prexy George Meany, himself a devout Catholic -- and of the Lutheran Walter Reuther, too, among hundreds of others. Father George, thus, is in effect, an unofficial "envoy" to the House of Labor. In a sense he is labor's "envoy," too, and his voice has been heard in high Vatican councils.

He is, however, one of many "labor priests" who spring to mind as one meditates over the visit of Pope Paul to the UN glass house, so different from the Vatican halls, and to the concrete canyons, so different from the hills near Rome where rests the Castel Gandolfo.

A bustling world has little noticed the fighting priests, famed inside labor all the way from the waterfront of the Philippines to Philadelphia and New York.

They've fought the mob. They've battled the Communists. Many times the priests struggled into exhaustion, which along with physical danger followed them into their schools and churches.

Right now Father Philip Carey, of New York's St. Francis Xavier Church, is in the hospital recovering from a heart attack. It was he, Father Corridan who became the famed waterfront priests when they took on the Manhattan mobs back in the fifties.

There is Father Charles Owen Rice, who in the old Pittsburgh days was always on hand when steelworkers and those of the electrical unions needed skilled infighting to beat back the Communists in the CIO. Few insiders forget Father

John Boland, the Buffalo, priest whose strong hand and soft voice actually moved him into public office in troubled days. He became regional NLRB director there, and then Chairman of the State Labor Relations Board.

And few who know the stocky, deceptively pishish Father William Smith will ever forget him. He was the first, I believe, to start a modern Catholic labor school. There are many of these now training men and women to understand responsible trade unionism and the dangers and subtleties of Communist infiltration.

It was Father Smith who, in 1940, put together the Crown Heights School for Catholic Workmen in Brooklyn. Today he directs St. Peter's College's Institute of Industrial Relations, but despite harrowing hours, there always is time to duel with Jim Hoffa.

They have guts these labor priests. I've seen them walk through rings of gangsters, howling Communist operatives, and machete-carrying Castroite campesinos.

Here it's in the tradition of Baltimore's James Cardinal Gibbons of the explosive 1880s. on the Knights of Labor -- the industrial unionists of that era who won the following of over 700,000 workmen -- Cardinal Gibbons went to Rome. He convinced Pope Leo XIII to endorse the Knights of Labor.

It was the first such recognition of militant labor. The Knights broke up in fratricidal battle and a new organization led by a cigar maker, Sam Gompers, survived.

Then in 1891, Pope Leo issued the first of a Catholic trilogy of social encyclicals -- "Rerum Novarum" (New Things). It spoke of labor's rights to organize for bread, dignity and freedom.

Four decades later, Pope Pius XI issued "Quadragesimo Anno" (Forty Years After). It updated and reaffirmed Pope Leo's encyclical. Finally came John XXIII's 1961 encyclical -- "Mater et Magistra" -- (Mother and Teacher).

Through the trilogy ran the central theme of a socially responsible society in Pope Leo's words, "Every man has by nature the right to possess property as his own." Yet, despite the basic tradition, let no one think each labor priest, in big city or in the jungle's edge, in the field or near the factories, thinks alike.

They have their faith in common. And their courage. But these days they do intellectual battle amongst themselves, too.

And that is good. It's the kind of stimulation labor needs.

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a woman who decided the day my daughter became a mother that I would never interfere with her in any way, and above all that I would never tell her how to raise her children. Something has come up now and I'm finding it difficult to keep quiet. Please advise me because this may be a matter of life and death.

Yesterday while we were having coffee I asked my daughter where the 3-year-old was. It seemed very quiet in the youngster's room. "Oh, Martha is playing in the bathtub," was the answer.

I was horrified that my daughter would leave such a small child alone in the tub. I went to see what was going on. There was Martha, having a great time with her rubber toys and celluloid boat. My daughter said, "See -- she's perfectly fine."

Ann, it takes only a few seconds for a tragedy to occur and I am worried sick that something might happen. What is your opinion? PANICKY GRANNY

Dear Granny: No child under seven years of age should be left alone to play in a bathtub. Many people do not know that a child can drown in a few inches of water if he falls face first. I urge you to call this to your daughter's attention. This is not interference.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl who will be 17 very soon. My problem is that I am going with a boy who isn't 16 yet. I am not old enough to think seriously about any boy and I know it. Les and I are just good friends, but the kids in my crowd have really been piling it on. When one of my girl friends heard Les and I were going to the band concert together, she said, "You ought to charge his mother 50¢ an hour for baby sitting."

I asked my parents if they thought it was wrong for me to go with a boy who is a year and a half younger than I am and they said it is up to me to decide.

Please, Ann, tell me what is your opinion? I like Les a lot and he is much more mature for his age than some of the boys who are 17.--TROUBLES

To Observe World Wide Communion

Sunday morning some of our congregations will be reaching the billion mark as nearly that many Christians will kneel for Holy Communion, demonstrating the truth of the 1965 World Wide Communion theme, "We Have a Fellowship." The Lord's Supper will penetrate the walls of brick and mortar, the curtains of iron and bamboo and for that moment at least, differences of race, color, and political persuasion will be erased.

Among the local churches participating in the observance will be First Christian Church, St. Paul's Episcopal Church, First Methodist Church, and Hunter Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Crites Is Hostess To Committee Meet

The Executive Committee of Matthews Elementary P. T. A. met Tuesday evening, Sept. 28, at the home of Mrs. Allen Crites.

The meeting was called to order by President Clyde Launius. Secretary and treasurer's report was read and approved. Various items of business were discussed and reports were given by each project chairman.

At the next P. T. A. meeting, Oct. 12, the subject will be "Understanding Mental Health."

Those who didn't get to pay membership dues at the last meeting can see Mrs. Weissman at the October meeting. All business finished, the meeting was ended with a visit over pie and coffee.

Dear Troubles: Your parents gave you good guidance. If you are not uncomfortable about the age difference, simply ignore the comments from the bleachers. How a boy conducts himself is more important than when he was born.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been reading your column for many years but never has a letter made me so furious as the one from the donkey who said he would gladly have kissed the draft board doctor had he known homosexuals did not have to serve in the armed forces.

As one who loves God and country I am happy his kind are in the minority. He does not deserve to live in a country that others fought and died for.

During World War II, I volunteered for Navy duty and served 42 months -- two years of it on hot, steaming islands in the Pacific. If my service contributed to the preservation of our freedoms I do not regret a single day of it nor do I feel that my attitude is especially heroic. There were millions more like me. If you print my letter sign me, simply MEMPHIS VOLUNTEER

Dear Volunteer: Thank you for your excellent letter. True, there were millions like you but each man who served made his own personal sacrifice--and his own special contribution.

Awkward and self-conscious? Unsure of yourself? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper.

Kennett Indians Slaughtered By Bulldogs 20-6

By Don Voelker
Standard Sports Editor

The Kennett Bulldogs scorched the Kennett Indians here last night 20-6. The Bulldogs were out for blood last night and right off they started hitting, blocking, and running hard. A few seconds after Kennett kicked to the Bulldogs, Spears threw a pass that was good for ten yards. When it was the Indians turn to play ball the Bulldogs were ready for them. Kennett was stopped time after time by the Dogs, and the Indians had to kick on their 28 yard line. There was a flag on the next play and the Indians were charged with illegal formation; the penalty was declined. Sikeston lost ten yards trying to get off a pass. Again on the next play Sikeston lost eight yards trying to pass. The fourth down was up for Sikeston and the Bulldogs kicked. Kennett fumbled the ball and Terry Scudder recovered it on the Kennett 20 yard line. On the next play Scudder took up the ball and ran for five yards before he was downed. With 11 minutes and 52 seconds to go in the second quarter, Scudder again took up the ball and ran 13 yards for Sikeston's first touchdown of the game.

DOGS SCORE
Last night was a bad night for the Indians. Everything seemed to go wrong for them. When they finally did regain possession of the ball they were either stopped dead or one of the Indians fumbled. Sikeston saw early in the game that they could give Kennett a rough time and they really started pouring the coal on. The Indians kept trying to pass but their quarter back either couldn't hit or the receivers couldn't catch the ball. Sikeston did break up several of the Indians' pass attempts.

With two minutes and 28 seconds left in the second half, on the Kennett 19 yard line, Kenny Cantrell very evasively sprinted all 19 yards for the Bulldogs second touchdown. The extra point attempt was no good.

INDIANS STOPPED
Kennett received the ball but they didn't get past their 20 yard line before they had to kick to keep the Bulldogs out of their territory. Terry Scudder ran seven yards and was downed on the Sikeston 43 yard line. Scudder again took the ball and ran seven more yards until two Indians tackled him. One of the Indians hit him high, the other hit him low and Terry Scudder, badly shaken up, was helped off the field. Kenny Cantrell then ran 9 yards and the Bulldogs tried for a pass but it was broken up by the Indians.

KENNETT GETS TOUGH
In the third quarter the Indians realized that they were really going to have to get tough to even score and when they got possession of the ball they hung on for dear life. Kennett Indian, Goodrich, ran 19 yards for a touchdown. The Indians began to play harder, and they really began to look like a team. From the top of the third half until the end of the game the Kennett Indians played rough football. It was too late for the Indians, however; because the Bulldogs had the look of glory in their grasp and they kept it throughout the rest of the game. One of the Indians ran back for a pass, slipped and caused Kennett to lose nine yards.

ELLISON BLOCKS PASS
In the fourth quarter Max Ellison knocked a Kennett pass out of the air by slapping down at it with both hands. He tried to hang on to the ball but the rubber pads on his arms prevented him from intercepting it. With 53 seconds left in the last quarter, the Indians were making a last chance effort to go over the goal line. A penalty was called against the Indians for grabbing a Dog face mask and Kennett was walked back 15 yards. The Kennett quarter back threw a real fine pass and Sikeston Bulldog Danny Lopp made a real fine interception and made an outstanding run from the Bulldog 22 yard line to the Kennett Indians 41 yard line. With only 13 seconds left

In the game Ron Spears threw a pass, Mike Boardman made a nice catch, went over the goal line and stacked 6 more points against Kennett. On the extra point attempt Sikeston was called back on a fifteen yard penalty for illegal use of hands. With only five seconds left in the game the Bulldogs had to try for another extra point from the Kennett 30 yard stripe. The Bulldogs ran the extra point but didn't make it. The game ended with Sikeston the victor, 20-6.

Mules Buck Indians 20-0

JACKSON - The Poplar Bluff Mules whipped the Jackson Indians last night 20-0. Larry Vaughn ran 54 yards for the Mules first touchdown and Bruce Nall kicked the extra point. After a 44 yard drive by the mules, Nall again went over from the Jackson 1 yard stripe and kicked the extra point. Larry Vaughn intercepted one of the Jackson Indian's passes and ran back for a touchdown.

Jackson had 13 first and tens and Poplar Bluff had ten. Poplar Bluff had 202 rushing yardage while the Jackson Indians had only 137. Out of 16 passes thrown by Jackson, 4 were completed for a total of 60 yards. Bluff passes 9 times for three hits and also a total of 60 yards.

Two of Poplar Bluff's top line-men last night are Steve Decker and Keith Dunn. Larry Vaughn has a good chance of being picked as Back Of The Week for his action last night.

Glen Stewart rushed 200 yards on Portageville's offense. Portageville Bulldog Bruce Henning scored the first touchdown in the first quarter on an eight yard run. Bulldog Ronnie Hamre kicked the extra point. The second touchdown was scored by Glen Stewart and Hamra again kicked the extra point and scored the third touchdown and once again kicked the extra point. In the fourth quarter Stewart made the Bulldog's last touchdown on a 15 yard run. Stout also did an outstanding job on defense.

Perryville Flogged By Blue Jays

CHARLESTON - The Blue Jays beat the Perryville Pirates last night on Blue Jay home ground. Charleston Blue Jay quarter back Terry Brashers scored a touchdown in the fourth quarter with a one yard drive. Brashers made the second touchdown from the Pirate's two yard line and also kicked the extra point. Second string quarter back Babb threw a pass to Bob Richardson who sprinted over the goal line and also kicked the extra point. Terry Brashers passed to Bob Rodgers who made Charleston's fourth touchdown of the night. The extra point was blocked by the Perryville Pirates.

Redbirds Drop 4-2 To Houston

The St. Louis Cardinals collided with each other and the Houston Astros Friday night in the Astrodome as the Redbirds dropped a 4-2 decision to Houston.

Mike Shannon and Curt Flood collided in right center in the second inning. The crash caused Flood to drop the ball and two Astro runners scored—enough for the victory margin. Both Shannon and Flood stayed in the game.

Tim McCarver doubled across two runs in the seventh inning for the Cardinals.

Larry Jaster 2-0, the Cardinals rookie, will start for St. Louis today against the Astros. Don Arlich 0-0, a Houston rookie, will pitch for Houston.

Kansas City had the same kind of luck at Chicago as the White Sox defeated them 6-1 in what had been a close game until the eighth inning.

Pete Ward singled two runs home in the eighth and before it was over the White Sox had five runs and moved into a second place American League tie with Baltimore.

It has been tied 1-1 until the

Dodgers In Final Round

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
It would be fitting if Sandy Koufax clinched the National League pennant for the Los Angeles Dodgers today. But he may not get the opportunity.

Koufax, whose 25 victories have led Los Angeles' drive for the pennant, is in a position to nail it down for the Dodgers, who clinched at least a tie for their third flag in seven years despite a 2-0 loss to Milwaukee Friday night.

The Dodge game will start one hour and 15 minutes after the second-place San Francisco Giants take the field against the Cincinnati club that mauled them 17-2 Friday night.

The time factor is such that if ninth, Kansas City's run came in the seventh on an Ed Charles single, an infield out and a throwing error.

Fred Talbot 10-11 throws for the Athletics today at Chicago. Bruce Howard 8-8 will be on the mound for the White Sox.

Gilliam, however, threw high to Jim Lefebvre in a try for a force play at second base, and Alou scored when Lefebvre's toss to first base was too late for an out there.

The Dodgers, who had won 13 games in a row, could have clinched it Friday night by winning one more, but the Braves' Denny Lemaster stood in their way.

Lemaster, winning only his seventh game against 13 defeats, pitched out of his only jam in the first inning and went on to set the Dodgers down on five hits.

Claude Osteen, now 15-15, matched Lemaster until the Braves broke through for an unearned sixth inning run.

Felipe Alou led off with a walk and raced to third as catcher John Roseboro picked up Mack Jones' bunt and fired the ball past third base, Osteen walked Hank Aaron intentionally, then struck out Joe Torre and got Gene Oliver to rap a sharp groundout to third baseman Jim Gilliam.

RON SPEARS goes over the goal line with quarter back sneak.

the Giants lose before Los Angeles finishes its game, the Dodgers would have the pennant clinched before Koufax had an opportunity to wrap it up. As the race now stands, with the Dodgers leading by two games and only two remaining, either a San Francisco loss or a Los Angeles victory ends the struggle. The best the Giants can hope for is a tie by winning their games while the Dodgers lose twice, thus forcing a play-off.

Koufax will start against the Braves' 23-game winner, Tony Cloninger. The Giants will send Ron Herbel, 11-9, against Jim O'Toole, 3-9.

In other games Friday night, Pittsburgh edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1 and Houston defeated St. Louis 4-2.

The Chicago White Sox moved into a tie with Baltimore for second place in the American League by beating Kansas City 6-1 while the Orioles split with Cleveland. Baltimore won the opener 2-0 but the Indians took the nightcap 3-2.

OUTDOOR TIPS

SMALL STUFF HOLDER
The screw-cap metal containers 35mm color film comes in make neat waterproof holders for small items that usually bob around loose in a tackle box. Yellow color makes them easy to locate too.

BACKLASH
When your wife isn't looking, "borrow" her crochet hook and stow in your tackle box. It's the best thing yet for picking a bad snarl out of monofilament.

FIRE STARTER
Roll newspaper in strips. Soak in paraffin. Cut in 3-inch blocks and wrap in wax paper. Burns hot and long.

Alou drove in the Braves' other run with an infield single in the seventh inning.

It was no contest at San Francisco after the first five batters had swung away at Bob Bolin, Pete Rose singled, and one out later, Vada Pinson singled. Frank Robinson and Gordy Coleman then hit consecutive homers for a 4-0 lead and Sammy Ellis had more than enough working room as he posted his 22nd victory by scattering eight hits.

Before the game was over, Rose and Deron Johnson also had homered for the Reds while San Francisco Manager Herman Franks called on eight pitchers in an attempt to stem Cincinnati's 21-hit assault.

Tom Haller homered for the Giants and Len Gabrielson stroked three of their eight hits off Ellis.

The Pirates won it in the ninth against the Cubs on Jim Pagnaron's two-run single with the bases loaded.

Doubles by Chuck Harrison, Rusty Staub and winning pitcher Robin Roberts helped the Astros to a three-run second inning that got the job done against the Cardinals.

MARINATED GAME
Here's an idea. Soak "strong" game overnight in buttermilk. Removes wild flavor.

TAPED IN PLACE
A piece of adhesive tape makes a good bobber stop on monofilament line. One wrap slips easily through guides, but keeps bobber where you want it.

FISHERMAN'S STOVE
Take a 10 quart galvanized can and fill with sand about half full. Put a woman's stocking through the center and soak the sand with a gallon of kerosene. The stocking acts like a wick, burning and heating the can which radiates heat to you.

GAME CAN COUNT
Many animals can count up to one. If you want to fool a big buck, walk into woods with a pal and have the pal walk out. The deer counts one in, one out and assumes all's well... until you harvest him.

India was the seat of the ancient cotton industry.

Quail Season

JEFFERSON CITY AP — Because of a good carryover and a good nesting season, the 1965 quail hunting season will be the same length as last year, Nov. 10 through Jan. 15.

The Conservation Commission Thursday set the same bag limits also, 10 a day and 10 in possession.

Northwestern Missouri, long a desert for quail hunters, appears to have staged a comeback, biologists said. Elsewhere the crop of young quail seemed to have survived well despite heavy and frequent rains.

Only known breeding ground of the rare whooping crane is in Canada's Wood Buffalo park, near Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories.

TEENAGE EATING HABITS ARE POOR
 CHARLESTON -- Our eating habits and food preferences are influenced by many forces. These may be tradition, personality needs, family pressures, and cultural pressures. The teenagers want to be accepted by his own group, so will eat what others in his group eats.
 Half of our teenagers have inadequate diets. More girls than boys and older teenagers are the ones whose diets are lacking in calcium, iron, vitamin C and vitamin A.
 What reasons do kids give for their poor diets? They say: we skip breakfast; inadequate meal planning at home; lack of participation of family at meal time; poor selection of snacks; fad diets; and not enough time to eat.
 Studies show that there are other causes of their poor diets are: too many activities keep them away from home at meal time; eating habits are influenced by peer groups; desire to assert independence; fear of being fat; drink no milk. Many teenagers choose diets that are heavy in calories from sugar and fat. These neglect many of the nutrients needed by growing teenager. In eating frequently and in groups at the "drive-in", family-centered eating habits are apparently forgotten.

 Neither tradition nor good nutrition influences the teenagers eating habits. He is interested in friends, appearance, vigor, popularity, and sociability. Acceptance by the peer group is his most important need.

Extension Center News
 By Glenn Patton
 Director & Agricultural Agent
 CHARLESTON -- During the past week we have received questions from farmers who are concerned about stopping second growth on cotton. This new growth caused by recent rains can be stopped by using a desiccant to kill the plant, but this will leave all of the new growth as well as some of the mature leaves on the plant. We have had very little success in removing second growth with defoliant in Missouri.

USING DESSICANTS
 We usually suggest the use of desiccants on cotton only as a last resort. A desiccant kills the plants which naturally stops maturity. The bolls should be fully mature or have at least 90 percent of the crop open. We have already received reports of grade reduction due to green stain. If this is the case, you may have fields where a desiccant will pay. However, growers should be prepared to harvest the crop within 4 to 5 days after desiccant is applied while leaves are still tough enough to prevent excessive gin trash.
 Arsenic acid is the only desiccant we can recommend on cotton. It is sold under several trade names. Growers or custom applicators should read label for directions and restrictions. Arsenic acid should be handled with care as it is quite toxic to humans. Spray equipment should be flushed immediately after using arsenic acid as it is quite corrosive.
 Another problem that we may encounter, due to adverse

Ginners paid farmers mostly $46 per ton for cottonseed in trailer lots on gin yards during the week.

Levees Save 7,000 Acres of Soybeans
 CHARLESTON -- Hastily erected levees in the Dogtooth Bend area -- the other half of a huge S form by the Mississippi River -- are expected to save about 7,000 acres of soybeans from the flooding stream.
 Farmers used bulldozers, cats and tractor scrapers in building dirt embankments along low points. Largest of the dirt fills is about 10 feet high and about 1,000 feet long. Thirty farmers were involved.
 Work began Sept. 23 and for the most part was completed Sunday. The cost is estimated at $4,500.
 A week ago forecasters looked for a crest of 36 feet in the Mississippi at Cape Girardeau. This figure was revised downward to around 35 feet.
 At 32 feet on the Cape Girardeau gauge water enters the low spots in Dogtooth Bend.

Homecoming at Bloomfield Success
 BLOOMFIELD -- The success of the homecoming was reported by the finance chairman at the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Monday.
 It was also announced that the highway 25 dedication ceremonies in cooperation with Dexter will be held Nov. 10. A committee of Ferd Stoll, Bob Harris, Bob Gaines and Bill Poepelmeyer was appointed to be in charge of the grandstand construction.
 It will be built in the vicinity where the four-lane highway will begin.
 Mack Seism and Charles Graham will again be in charge of the Christmas decorations.
 Plans for a city-wide sale were discussed and Ferd Stoll, Howard Maupin and Elmer Hopkins were appointed to the planning committee.
 Report by D. L. Bess on the Crowley's Ridge recreational center rounded out the evening's business. He said that all

Weather Delays Harvest
 HAYTI -- Inclement weather continued to hamper the cotton harvest. Farmers resumed harvesting in well-drained fields over the weekend.
 Several mechanical pickers operated in the Hayti and Caruthersville localities. Farmers kept aerial sprayers busy defoliating cotton over the weekend.
 Many sections of the Bootheel report movement will not become heavy until the latter part of the week.
 Cotton classed through Monday at the Hayti classing office totaled about 63,500 samples, according to Paul W. Karban, officer-in-charge. Karban said this is slightly less than last year on the corresponding date, when approximately 65,000 samples had been classed.

Bootheel Beat Caruthersville Hopes For 'Fair' Weather

HAYTI - This is the season, or has been, for the fall festivals, fairs and carnivals in the Bootheel. Some have been experiencing unfavorable weather.

Attendance at the Delta Fair and Livestock show at Kennett last week was out the first two days due to rain.

The Legionnaires at Sikeston, however, hit a good stretch of weather with their annual cotton carnival, with their major events including the parade and main game contest scheduled Saturday.

The Southeast Missouri District Fair at Cape Girardeau suffered from rain.

So now the members of Pemiscot County American Legion Post No. 88 at Caruthersville are wondering what the weatherman has in store for them for the 32nd annual running of the American Legion Fair, which opens Wednesday for five days through Sunday afternoon.

Last year the weatherman wasn't kind. A cold wave moved in that kept crowds away until the last two days of the event. Any time an outdoor festival or fair, is scheduled, you are at the mercy of the weather.

Since the Legion Fair is one of the few such events that runs on Sunday, the Legionnaires often say that what helps attendance the most on Saturday and Sunday, the two big days, is a good soaking rain Friday night.

The effect is to halt farm work so thousands of people in the area have time on their hands to attend the fair during the weekend.

The Caruthersville Legionnaires think they have put together one of the best all-around programs in years. Briefly, here's the run-down: On Wednesday the regional youth talent show and three professional acts will be held on the grandstand stage; on Thursday evening the queen of the fair will be presented, a judo exhibition by airman from the Blytheville SAC Base will be given, and Tony Pipper, the musical editor from Kennett, will perform all followed by the pro show. On Saturday evening a special event will be antique car races.

For Friday, Saturday and Sunday, "The Four Fuller Brothers," a top group of young entertainers will join the pro show. On Saturday and Sunday the harness racing meet will be held each afternoon. In addition to a large carnival on the midway and the exhibition hall full of exhibits, the Legionnaires feel fortunate to have booked the display of a full scale model of the famed X-15 experimental airplane by the U. S. Air Force. This educational unit is 90 feet long, 40 feet wide and 28 feet high.

MENTAL HEALTH is a subject which a lot of people know little about, and all of us need to know more about it. I sat in on a meeting at the Pemiscot county health center in Hayti when Troy Wilson, administrator of the Dunklin county health center at Kennett, gave a rundown on progress in this field in the Bootheel.

We have a good organization working on this situation in the Bootheel, the Southeast Missouri Mental Health Association covers five counties. This group is off the ground and doing a lot of good with clinics held in the area, but what the people in general should keep in mind is that this association is voluntary and receives no revenue from taxes. All of its operational cost must come from public subscription.

Coming up soon are drives in the five counties to acquire the funds needed for the next year's operation, and to expand its services. Plans call for and additional clinic to be conducted at the health center in Hayti, if the funds can be acquired to employ a field assistant to work in the area.

According to Troy, vast strides have been made over recent years in the treatment of mental and emotional illnesses, the most successful results being with children and young people. Most such cases can be cured with today's medical practices. He advocates adding clinics in the five-county area in order to take care of more cases of that age group, working in cooperation with the schools.

It appears, however, that many people must change their attitude toward mental and emotional illnesses. Too many appear reluctant to work in such a fine program as a volunteer because of "what people might say." It is time that we recognize that the treatment of mental and emotional illnesses is just as important as the treatment or prevention of the more common diseases. It isn't something that you sweep under the rug.

The volunteer association formed in the Bootheel for assistance in this field is the only one of its kind in the state. It has worthwhile objectives -- so let's help them.

I HAVE SOMETHING to add about that umbrella bit I discussed in this space last week -- about no college student wishing to be caught dead without an umbrella on rainy days. Well, one of the boys was home from college last weekend and bought his umbrella. Just would like to note that if you haven't paid very much attention to umbrellas in recent years, be careful when you get hold of a new one.

Like nearly everything else these days, some of the new umbrellas have a little automation built into them. You press a button and they automatically fly open. Just don't press that button with anyone standing near you -- or you might punch them in the eye with a rib. Just another safety suggestion...

WILL SOMEONE TELL ME how to make a pet boa constrictor eat? My snake-hobbyist son went off to college and left his pet four-foot boa on our hands to take care of, but we can't seem to get the blame thing to eat. Of course, the book says this snake can go weeks at a time without eating. We've tried frogs, but no go. Another diet is live mice. Tried to take one away from our pet cat the other night to give to the boa, but Puss wouldn't hear of it. Promptly killed it and ate it herself.

Why fuss about a little dirt?

Honestly, he didn't mean to get so dirty. Mud has a way of getting on little fellows. Besides, he'll promise to be extra careful next time ... and the time after that, too!

What should you do? Chances are about a billion to one that you'll never really separate a healthy boy (or girl) from dirt. But you can make washing easier with an all-electric laundry. Just put the dirty clothes in an automatic washer ... set the dial ... and you have wonderfully fresh clothing in minutes. With an electric clothes dryer, you can finish the family laundry any time ... rain or shine.

Why, it takes the fuss right out of a little dirt!

ALL-ELECTRIC LAUNDRY

You'll lighten your work and always have fresh clothes with an all-electric laundry. You can safely dry all your wash in today's modern, electric clothes dryers. It's safe because it's flameless!

Journalists Have Goal Newspapers Make Occasion For Constant Changes

A NEWSPAPER IS an ever-changing history of current events. It records the joys, the sorrows, the large and the small that affect the average citizen's life. It changes constantly as people change, for it is a record of the people. The Barker itself is a record of each school week, and through it the staff hopes to give a true picture of what goes on in and around the school.

Staffers have one definite goal in mind -- they want to reach the minds of those who read. Members of the staff feel that it is their purpose to follow the established journalistic practices set before them. Mistakes will be made; this is true, regardless of the persons or situations.

For these mistakes the staff asks a sincere understanding and consideration, for they are a group faced with the task of publishing a newspaper -- writing, editing, proofing, photographing processes, designing the layout, writing the headlines, and pasting up the pages -- all in one week -- before the printing.

This group of students realizes that the first task of publishing the paper lies within the staff, but feels that the student body has a responsibility to aid in help and understanding of the news as it is read.

It is the staff's deepest desire that the reader will enjoy this year's Barker. It is only fair to remind the reader that proved journalistic principles will not be sacrificed to include articles designed to please one faction or group.

Staffers are striving to make the Barker a source of pride to all concerned -- students, faculty, and parents.

Time Is Running Out-- For American Democracy

AMERICANS FORGET! How many Americans can honestly answer "yes" to these questions? Do Americans stand at attention when the colors are presented?

Do Americans salute the flag when it is raised?

Do Americans say the "Pledge of Allegiance" to the flag daily?

Americans take very little time, today or any other day, to remember what the flag stands for. Some are guilty of being disrespectful when "The National Anthem" is played.

Few still retain what was once strong American patriotism. Most Americans have even forgotten what men once went through that they might have freedom today.

People forget to vote; they don't understand the Viet Nam war, and most do not make any attempt; they fail to recognize the rights of others.

This is the time for Americans to wake up. What is the meaning of democracy? If Americans wish to keep their present form of government, this is the time to act.

It could be possible that this form of government is on the way out. Noted authors have stated that the form of democracy instituted in the United States will last approximately 200 years. This country was formed in 1776; time is running out.

Americans have lost their patriotism before. United States has regained it before, but it has taken world wars to do the job.

It may well be too late for Americans to start considering what kind of government they want to have. There is no assurance today that the American way of life will continue; in fact, much evidence is to the contrary.

During the war, postage stamps were validated with "Pray for Peace."

It might be well for the American public to start praying for peace, and much more. That "much more" is that freedom of speech, of religion, of press, and the American way of life be preserved.
